COST AND CONSCIENCE

Henry Ford says:

"Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway. But I know the difference.

It does cost more to build a durable car....but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience."

The Rent Racket :

Can Anything be Done ?

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—On Avenue Haig there are two stretches of property almost directly opposite one to the other. Over one, the Chinese National Flag has ceased to fly, while over the other—when the occasion arose—the National Flag flew gloriously. There is a reason for this; the property in the one case was just outside the range of the protection of the Settlement, hence, the right of the owners over the property including its flag have "Gone West"—I should have said—East! On the other hand, the owner was just in the range of the Settlement and the owner has enjoyed the protection of the French, American, Italian and the British flags so that he can proudly fly his own.

From such a person one would expect at least gratitude, and at least a measure of a square deal. But that is not so. What happens is just this, that he exploits those very nationals who have made it possible for him to retain his property, he now attempts to squeeze out of them twice the rent that he asked for at this time last year. He takes the lead in the Rent Racket and furthermore expresses in actions an utter lack of confidence in the National currency.

Our Municipal Council has many functions not the least of which is to protect the residents of the Settlements. In times of stress and danger we have seen proclamations issued with very great promptitude. To counter the Rent Racket, the same quality is essential, it is time to act now!—give us some lead—let us know where we stand. How many times have I heard it said in the course of the last two weeks, "Surely the Councils will do something to prevent this?" The Council can if it will—there must be ways to counter rackets!.

German and Italian friends of mine have said that "They simply will not pay, let the landlord try as he may, he could not put the necessary pressure." But some of us are not thus placed, and our consular authorities might give us free accommodation if we did not pay our rent.

Action is necessary, immediate action is necessary; individual action is no use at all, it only leads to victimization. Action must come from the Councils—International and French.

As I write I feel particularly "Bolshy," and the longer I live and the more I see of my fellow human beings under the hand of a person or persons who have a slight advantage over them—the easier it is for me to understand the "Bolshy"—also the need for the Iron Hand.

If I have to provide a portion of the silver lining for the pocket of my Chinese landlord, then, will not only I have to go short but some adjustment will have to be made in the educational arrangements made for children in the home land. You can well understand one becoming "Bolshy."

PARVUS.

The British Navy:

A Report Questioned

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—When, in his cable from London yesterday regarding Britain's rapidly expanding Navy, your Special Correspondent states that H.M.S. Dido is the first of a new class of 5,500 ton cruisers mounting 6 in. guns he is slightly misinformed. Whilst she is considered the nameship of the class, she is not the first. I know that H.M.S. Hermione was launched on the Clyde last May, and I am almost certain that H.M.S. Naiad is already in the water as well. Moreover, these ships, of which there are eventually to be ten, will mount ten 5.25 in. guns in twin turrets all on the centre line. Their tonnage, too, is nearer 5,200 than 5,500 and I very much doubt whether ten larger guns could be safely mounted on that displacement.

The names of the other seven cruisers of this class are Bonaventure, Charybdis, Cleopatra, Euryalus, Phoebe, Scylla and Sirius.

The 5.25 in. gun is an unusual departure in the British Navy and our five new battleships of the King George V class each will mount sixteen in twin turrets as secondary armament.

Japanese Politics :

Question of the Larger Sun

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—It is the great honour for me to report you the most important matters in Japan as to the political party.

There are two great parties in our country, one the Seiyukai, the other is Minseito. The Seiyukai is larger than Minseito, and its president is worth for the head minister.

Now Editor, it happened suddenly two presidents in the Seiyukai. Mr. Kuhara and Mr. Nakajima. Both are the great authority in Japan, each has an universal name and the wealth, formed each a club with the support of his same mind on 29th of this month, and declared each opinions to the nations.

Thus is the clearly absurdity. There must be no two suns in the sky. Which is the true president? The question as to the orthodox president is very important things for the nations under today's circumstance as you know.

Mr. Kuhara formed a club Seito Seiyukai. It means true and pure Seiyukai, and 7th president Mr. Sufuki declared that he gave his position to Mr. Kuhara.

In spite of this declaration, Mr. Nakajima formed his club Kakusin Seiyukai. It means the most newly Seiyukai, and has 90 members in his hand, declared his own opinion to the nations with his powerful wealth. Both are the pre-minister in Japan, so the nations cannot determined which is right. But there is no two suns in the sky. Mr. Kuhara's authority became larger and larger day by day, in according to his great personality which includes the various things at the same movement.

Indeed, he is the wonderful existence in our country. Nobody can caught his character. Never he appeared his feelings on his face and determined everythings on the moment.

Under those circumstance, the confrontation of the public discussion must be avoid, and the synthetic observation is very necessary. The true reason why the two presidents appeared is consist in Mr. Nakajima's motion to aim at the position of the 8th president of the Seiyukai.

So the all actions of his member's is made in according to the expulsion agitation for Mr. Kuhara's all actions. But the 7th president already gave his position to Mr. Kuhara, in spite of Mr. Nakajima's motions, all nations believe by and by the true president is limited to Mr. Kuhara.

My dear Editor, I stayed in Shanghai four years as the journalist of the Shanghai Mainichi Daily newspaper, and I know well that your paper's authority in the world, so I send this report to you.

H. ADACHI.

A Small Shower :

Musicians and the Rain

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—I had the misfortune to witness the most dumbfounding act on the part of the Municipal Orchestra at Jessfield Park today, where I had gone specially to listen to the melodious strains of the most respectful musicians.

They were about to begin, when unfortunately for the listeners and quite opportunely for the players, a small cloud over-shadowed the park and rain began to fall. It was neither a shower, nor a downpour, but just a slight drizzle which commenced at 5.28 p.m. and ended at 5.35 p.m. There was not a stir among the spectators, but alas, the musicians felt somewhat uneasy. They stood up, hesitated for some time, and then marched off never to return again. Were they afraid to wet their well-ironed suits, being in such a rain-proof pavilion? Or were they taking the advantage of this insignificant drizzle to keep other personal appointments?

I am sure that if on the morrow there would have been a Ratepayers' Meeting, discussing the "to be or not to be" of the Symphony Orchestra, they would not have made such a hasty retirement.

Cinema Queries:

Answers at Long Length

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—After almost a week, I find the enquiries of FILM LOVER still unanswered.

They are as follows:—

(a) Charles Boyer was born at Figeac, France, August 28, 1899. Of French parentage, having their ancestry in Russia. Is of, I understand, the Jewish faith.

(b) Paul Muni's "Emile Zola" was brought to Shanghai. As is known, the film deals with the famous Dreyfus Case, and while enthusiastically received wherever shown,—and even a bust of Muni as Zola erected in Hollywood to commemorate the picture and the characterization—was, on account of objections by authorities South of the Yang King Pang (as in "The Hurricane") banned from showing in Shanghai.

Donations to Charity

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—As a result of the International Recreation Club's 27th annual race meeting, held last April the General Committee were able to forward a cheque for $23,500 to the Shanghai Refugee Relief Association, per Messrs. Yu Ya Ching and L. T. Yuan.

The executives of the above association have duly expressed their grateful thanks for the above donation. It has given the general committee and members of the International Recreation Club pleasure to be able to make this welcome donation and we now wish to place on record our best thanks to the stewards and members of the Shanghai Race Club for allowing the International Recreation Club to hold its 27th annual race meeting on the Shanghai Race Course—a privilege which was greatly appreciated. Thanking you for your kindness and courtesy in publishing this letter.

Headaches:

An Appeal for Cure

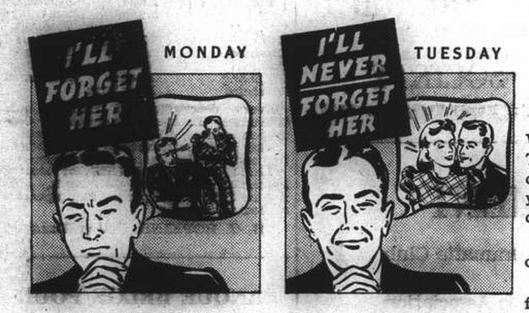
To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS.

SIR,—I shall be very much obliged if there is any very good method of headache cure or any other medicine to stop pain of my head known amongst your readers and/or any other friends and colleagues of readers, as I have been suffering from headache very much in all time, and I have ever cured with all kinds of tablets and powders but without success, and am still a suffering one, and many doctors were visited with no results.

Sir, is there any very good way and new to cure the troubled head?

TO UNDERGO ANXIETY ONE.

Shanghai, July 10.



"She's charming, delightful, but I can't stand those painted lips. They give her a harsh look. People stare at her. If she would only stop painting!"

"Miracle of miracles! Why didn't she use Tangee before? Now she's her natural, lovely self. Her lips are smooth and soft—so alluring. If women only knew how men hate painted lips!"

What makes Tangee so different, you'll ask? Why does it end that painted look? Because Tangee isn't paint—can't paint. Instead it changes color from orange in the stick to a youthful blush rose on your lips. And its cream base keeps lips soft and appealing.

On occasion, you may prefer a more vivid color, then use Tangee Theatrical.

Use Tangee Rouge and Face Powder, too, for perfect color harmony. Ask for Tangee beauty aids today—sold in all good stores.

All From the Country

THE COUNTRYMAN A Quarterly Non-Party Review and Miscellany of Rural Life and Work. Edited and Published by J. W. Robertson Scott at Idbury, Kingham, Oxfordshire. 2/6 quarterly or 10/- yearly.

The promise of "The Countryman" in its last issue to present in its next the case against a National Park in the Highlands has been fulfilled, and Lord Latymer, Lord Cavan, Cameron of Lochiel, and "A Well-Known Peer" put forward their objections—to which a rejoinder is made by Lord Onslow, who made the original plea. Lord Cavan is short and definite, as becomes a soldier:

I am in complete disagreement with the suggestion of Lord Onslow.

He gives no reason why.

Age in Scotland

"My Grandfather," by John McNeillie, author of "Wigtown Ploughman," is an appreciation of which any grandfather might be proud. His grandfather is not only strong of mind but of body:

I first realized his strength some four years ago. He was about seventy-four then. During one of his morning jobs, he was building a "slap" across the front of a shed in which he wished to confine a sow about to "pig." I saw him walking from the stackyard with a full-sized railway sleeper under each arm. Eager to lend a hand, I hurried to him and told him to give me one before he strained his heart. "Here then, boy," he said, and I put my arms round the sleeper. I couldn't even hold it, and I was eighteen and strong for my age. It fell and badly bruised my toe, and earned me a whimsical smile that made me regret my eagerness...

A discussion has arisen out of Mr. P. H. J. Street's saying that he had made £2,000 a year out of cattle (between 70 and 100 Irish cows, living out) and poultry by working only an hour a day on his 370-acre farm in Hampshire—and 13 experts give their guesses as to how many farmers there are in England who make £2,000 a year. The guesses range from "Actually about thirty, I should think...." "anything between 200 and 2,000" and so on, to those who consider it "not much of a profit."

Rabbits in Trees

"A Fruit-Grower's Diary" contains its usual fascinating items—here are a few:

Feb. 3. A friend tells me of hares and rabbits in trees and on the hedge tops around the flooded areas of Maidenhead and Cookham.

* * *

Feb. 7. At Hatfield House, where in 1611 the first imported red and black currants were set—they cost a farthing a dozen. Patched and concrete-filled are four mulberries of the same date. The first quinces and cedars of Lebanon live here also.

* * *

Feb. 25. A friend back from America tells me that out there the addition of even 4 per cent. of butter fat would demand that an ice cream was labelled "frozen milk." In England some so-called "ice creams" contain large quantities of suet, lard, and low grade margarine, among other adulterants.

* * *

March 21. A subscriber, writing from Cairo, states that since the building of the Assouan Dam there are no crocodiles in Egypt, so my tale of the reptile within the hen's egg is only a good story.

* * *

Apr. 22. The pride of a local villager is a cinder path 15 yards long, with a border two inches wide, entirely composed of shining white artifical teeth.

One would give much to have the Fruit Grower's open eye and ear!

". . . . . You're so Handsome, Sir!"

Short extracts are given from another journal, that of John Fox, who toured with his brother in Ireland in 1831—the extracts end:

We got into Limerick as dirty as sweeps. In the street I saw a young girl grinning, and said to her, "What are you laughing at, my little lass?" to which she replied with all the simplicity of truth, "I'm laughing at you because you're so handsome, Sir"; and while I'm about it I may as well add that today a girl on the coach told me that my eyes were not set in my head for the good of my soul.

"The Way by Which I Have Come," a series of reminiscences by people of interest, is this quarter written by Sylvia Townsend Warner, to whom the cause of the labouring man is dear; "What Games does your Dog Play?" shows the observation of a dog-lover; "From Day to Day" is a miscellany of notes of all kinds made during the preceding quarter—for instance, from a paper given by Sir David Hall as an Old Mancunian:

...He said we had to learn how to estimate the validity of results, and that a great deal could be learnt by tossing a penny repeatedly and recording the sequence of heads or tails. He declared that he himself had once spent an instructive day doing this. Our systems of education, he said, were devised by scholars for scholars, and the effort of our public schools to retain boys to the age of 18 or so was "responsible for the prolonged childishness which is a characteristic of the English governing class." So now we know...

Treadmill For a Hare

Another octogenarian tells of his life experiences in "Eighty Years of It."

...We used to kill pheasants and sell them to a man who had a licence. We knew if the keepers were in the pub or at home, and we used to go out and shoot the partridges. I was never caught for poaching, but I've been to jail a time or two, as innocent as you are. Once for shooting a hare, but I never done it. I was twenty-six. They gave me two months for that, me and my brother and another. Bad food, picking oakum, and the treadmill. I used to tie a handkerchief from top of my trousers to the rail of the trademill to take my weight; then it was not so bad...

"My Island and Our Life There" by R. M. Lockley is continued; enquiries as to "Townsmen's Chances on the Land" are replied to; the writer of "Building a Small Cottage" feels his experiences may be useful to readers; pros and cons as to "Is the Photographer of a Bird its Enemy?" are given by experienced photographers, one of which concludes:

The remark I once hear that the true friend of birds is the person who does not know anything about them and takes no interest in them probably hits the nail on the head.

Village Swimming Bath

"The Flower Garden" is a pleasant and useful section and so is "The Home Acre," which gives hints on three acres and a cow in practice—bringing along the crops in the summer, the art of thinning and keeping fruit, storing vegetables, canning, a fool-proof greenhouse, bees, hens. "The Collector" in this issue tells about what prices one may expect to get for antique furniture etc. Under "Bench, Council and Committee" it is recorded that the swimming pool provided at Filkins, Oxfordshire, by Sir Stafford and Lady Cripps has not only done the bathers good but promoted good will—one man said he had never had so many friends as since the opening of the pool—even the football club has progressed since its opening, and it has now been handed to the parish council and become quite a source of revenue. An Old County Clerk recalls among other things:

...I had once to write to an old man and his wife for their birth certificates. They each sent me a half-sheet of notepaper on which they had written, "I hereby certify that I was born." A young man was the only prisoner in our county gaol, so the gaoler took him into his house and set him to wash dishes. As the youth carried the dishes past the outer door he saw it was open, set down his burden and walked out. He got on board a fishing smack and was seen no more. His father promptly sent in a claim for damages against the county council authorities for having lost his son while in their keeping...

The Poacher's Verdict

A poacher and a gamekeeper contribute "Poaching—Two Points of View," and something the poacher says will be of interest to those who have followed the hare controversy in the correspondence columns of this paper:

All wild life will sooner squat than run, and birds will run before they will fly. I found I could approach within a few feet of crouching pheasants as long as I never looked at their eyes...

"The Countryman" is a fat little magazine, naturally, seeing that it contains quarter by quarter all of the most fascinating and useful for the lover of the country—it is impossible to enumerate all that it contains—and the photographs are a joy.

ANSWER TO HITLER Reflections on Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and on some recent events upon the Continent of Europe. By Evan John. Nicholson & Watson, London. 1/-.

This is an attempt by a writer who is not a political expert to induce the ordinary man to clarify his views and to find out wherein the challenge of Hitler really lies.

If there is a danger, even a remote danger, that we may soon have to be fighting side by side, it can do us no harm to known clearly what each of us is prepared and not prepared to fight for.

He maintains quite fairly that it is impossible to pronounce an opinion on the present state of Europe without having read "Mein Kampf," a book which in England has been misquoted and frequently underestimated. The man-in-the-street is, however, right in thinking that the principles and the power of Nazi Germany "are a menace to the foundations on which English life is built," and that we cannot afford to strike a bargain with her. That menace is implied in Hitler's theory of Race—a theory which he may attempt to apply not only in Germany (that is Germany's own concern) but throughout modern Europe. Racial conceptions are necessarily vague, but they are, none the less, menacing and they breed an intolerance almost unparalleled in world history. In September 1938 we yielded to one of Hitler's lightning strokes because we were so ill-prepared that we could not chance a war, but can we afford to let him "get away" with it again? The ordinary man is slow to wake up, but he is waking up now.

This book is perhaps best described by its own subtitle "Reflections on Hitler's 'Mein Kampf' and on some recent events upon the Continent of Europe." It contributes nothing very original, but it is sanely and soberly written and should help the ordinary man to sort out his opinions and know where he stands.—W.M.M.

A China Review

THE CHINESE RECORDER July. 169 Yuen Ming Yuen Road, Shanghai. 60 cents. $5 per annum.

Photographs of West China Union University and designs (accompanied by articles) for church and community buildings by Mr. J. Prip-Moller and Mr. J. V. M. Bergamini brighten the pages of "The Chinese Recorder" for July. Mr. Kiang Wen-han and the Rev. Luther Tucker contribute respectively articles discussing the coming World Conference of Christian Youth in Amsterdam. "Christianity and Democracy" by Dr. S. H. Leger, and "Student Evangelism in Hongkong and South China" by Professor S. Lautenschlager follow. The Rev. John Petersen describes "A Solemn Baptismal Act of 162 Officers and Soldiers," an incident of the war area, and the permanent features of "The Recorder" are well sustained.

"Are you hit, senor?" asked Enriques.

"I guess so, but nothing very serious. Nevertheless I can do with a little bit of patching up."

replies Jack Brennan, the hero of "Sea Range" (Ward Lock, London. Colonial Edition 3/6) and Mr. E. Laurie Long, the author, then proceeds to inform the reader a few paragraphs later that Brennan has suffered not less than five deep flesh wounds in the chest. This indeed is but a small example of his superhuman abilities, the fruit of the author's brilliant imagination. Brennan, a cow-boy accustomed to the great plains, becomes the captain of a steamer loaded with arms, somewhere off South America. An error in the compass conveys the ship to a Republican Spanish port, where the cargo is sold and where Brennan, single-handed, saves one member of his crew by firing at about twenty soldiers who are chasing him. At another point of the book, when the steamer passes through a narrow passage of a river, the hero shoots and kills the entire crew of the shore battery. Whilst this may be something about which any schoolboy may rave, it is hardly fit to be recommended to the mature lover of fiction, though it must be admitted that the book is written at a breathless tempo and that one supernatural thrill follows another. But Brennan is so tremendously a he-man that he even manages to hold up the commander of a British cruiser, finally obtaining from him what he wants. Mr. Laurie Long has done much better before this and it is to be hoped that in his next book previous standards will be upheld.—A.S.I.

There are no glamorous girls in Mr. Caddo Cameron's "At the End of a Texas Rope" (Ward Lock, London. 3/6)—except a glimpse of one weeping over a man who had just settled up for his sins. This is a book for those who love only Rangers. It requires a strong nerve to read it. But those who have the nerve will find this tale of "the bloody border country" to be a very good one—although even they may feel inclined, like Badger Coe, of the Rangers, to look away as Don Augustin Felipe de Hernandez dies.—D.P.

Mrs. L. E. B. Freeman Murdered

Verdict Returned by H.M. Coroner as Enquiry Into British Lady's Death Concludes

A VERDICT of murder, committed by a person or persons unknown, was returned by Mr. C. H. Haines, H. M. Coroner, yesterday when the inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Laura Elizabeth B. Freeman, the 74 year-old-owner of The Palms, an apartment house at 211 Avenue Haig, was concluded. Mrs. Freeman was discovered lying dead in her bedroom, on June 24, her arms and legs having been bound, while all drawers and cupboards in the room had been ransacked.

First witness to give evidence was Sub-Insp. John Gioulis of the French Municipal Police, Identification Bureau, who identified several photographs taken by him at the house following Mrs. Freeman's death. Mrs. Freeman's amah, Lu Tsong-tseng, followed and told the Coroner that she had been engaged by her mistress on June 17.

On June 23, she stated, she left the flat at about 9.15 p.m., leaving Mrs. Freeman with two foreigners, a woman and a man. She had never seen them in the flat before. At about 6.30 a.m. on June 24 she went back to Mrs. Freeman's flat but could not get in. After knocking at both the front and back doors she went downstairs to see the boy in Flat 1, who informed her that he had seen Mrs. Freeman walking outside her flat.

Witness then went upstairs and knocked on the door again, and the occupant of Flat 8 came out, going downstairs at about 8.30 a.m. to inform the occupant of Flat I. Both ladies returned upstairs and knocked at the door, witness added, but got no reply and so they returned downstairs again and tried to get through by telephone. When this failed they secured some scissors and cut out a piece of mosquito netting from the door and went inside. Witness did not enter as she had been told not to. The occupant of Flat 1 was a friend of Mrs. Freeman, she added.

One of the ladies came out after a little while and spoke to some foreigners, who were outside, using the word "Sorry," witness went on. She then went downstairs and telephoned for the police. Mrs. Freda Maria Elizabeth Bruce, who gave evidence of identification at the opening of the enquiry, was then called.

Dog Barking

She told, the Coroner that at about 6 p.m. on June 23 she went up to Mrs. Freeman's flat, but did not go inside. Between 10 and 11 p.m. she went to bed and, soon afterwards, was awakened by her dog barking. On opening the door she found Mrs. Freeman outside. "She asked me if she might come in," Mrs. Bruce, continued, "and I agreed. She was very excited and frightened. She was always frightened. Mrs. Freeman told me that she was frightened for her life. She believed that people were persecuting her." One of Mrs. Freeman's visitors the previous night had been a Mrs. Seitz, witness was informed, and Mrs. Freeman seemed to be rather upset after her visitors' departure.

Witness accompanied Mrs. Freeman to her flat and at midnight again heard the dog barking and so she went downstairs but found nothing. At about 2 a.m., the dog barked again and she went downstairs. Upon her return she sat with Mrs. Freeman for a while and left at about 2.45 after hearing her dog bark once more. Before leaving she told Mrs. Freeman that she could go with her if she was scared but the offer was refused.

Entrance Forced

Mrs. Bruce continued that she took her dog out and went round the compound and on going inside she told Mrs. Freeman that she had been outside but had seen nothing. Mrs. Freeman replied that she was quite all right and willing to go to sleep. Witness then went to bed. At about 9 a.m. a Mrs. Duff, who lived in Apartment 5, came in and informed her that the amah could not get into Mrs. Freeman's room.

Witness had a key to the apartment and she agreed to go upstairs to see what was the matter. As she was going to the room she saw Mrs. Freeman's cat, which she had put inside the room at night, on the stairs. Upon arrival at Mrs. Freeman's room she knocked the door but got no answer and so she procured some scissors which, with the help of Mrs. Flynn, she cut the mosquito netting on the door and entered.

"I went straight towards the couch, where Mrs. Freeman slept," said Mrs. Bruce, "and I saw that the room was disturbed and everything upset. I touched a blanket over Mrs. Freeman's face to see if she was alive and I could see that her legs were tied, her underwear being exposed to her waist. I saw that she was dead so I walked out without touching anything."

After locking the door she said "Murder" to Mrs. Flynn and went down and telephoned for the police. She added that she believed Mrs. Freeman was demented, her whole actions being irregular. She did not believe that Mrs. Freeman's life was in danger and put it down to imagination. Mrs. Freeman told her that she had been in fear for ten years.

Mrs. Roma Koller, occupant of Apartment 9, told the Coroner that on the morning of June 24 at about 2.30 a.m. she got up as her mother was sick. She attended her and returned to bed. At 3 a.m. she heard the spunds of running and crying and thought that her mother had uttered the sounds but was informed by her that the sounds must have come from somewhere in the house.

After hearing running on the stairs again, she went to the window with her husband and saw three Chinese men running towards the street entrance. She noticed that two of them had white shirts and black trousers. Asked by the Coroner to describe the crying, she said it was a terrible noise which she could not describe. It was so near that she thought it had come from her mother's room, which was near the kitchen staircase. The back of her flat was opposite Mrs. Freeman's apartment.

The verdict was as follows "I find that Laura Elizabeth B. Freeman was murdered by some person or persons unknown at Flat No. 7, 211 Avenue Haig on the 24th. day of June, 1939, death being due to asphyxia due to suffocation acting on a weak heart."

Arab Policeman Killed In Palestine

Terrorism Dies Down as Many Leaders Leave

Jerusalem, July 9.

The Sabbath was quiet in Palestine today and only one incident was reported as terrorism was seen to be gradually dying down.

The sole incident of the day occurred on the Samaria highway, where an Arab policeman was killed by an Arab rebel.

Meanwhile, following the departure from the Holy Land of many terrorist chieftains, Abdul Kader Hussein has taken over leadership of the rebels.—Havas.

Spanish Town Goes Up in Explosion

Powder Dump Ignited By Lightning; Train Completely Vanishes

Burgos, July 10.

Thirty persons were killed and several hundred others were injured yesterday when a powder magazine explosion at Panaranda, Salamanca destroyed half of Bracamonte township. When General Francisco Franco was informed of the tragedy, he immediately sent 20,000 pesetas to aid in relief work.

After a hurried investigation, it was officially announced at Madrid that heat and lightning caused the explosion. To avoid further deaths, the entire town was evacuated and three companies of infantry detailed to patrol the streets.

Although the powder deposit was three quarters of a mile outside the city, every house was either smashed or burned. Scores of persons were also reported injured in neighbouring villages.

Eye-witness reports from the scene of the disaster recounted the disappearance of an entire train, including all its passengers and freight cars. The train was approaching the station adjoining the powder deposit when the explosion occurred. All civil guards and employees of the railway station also disappeared in the explosion, eye-witnesses said.—United Press.

U.S.S. Henderson is Delayed Two Days

Transport Arrives Here on Thursday from North

The United States Naval Transport Henderson has been delayed in North China and will not reach Shanghai until Thursday, two days behind schedule, according to information received from U.S. Naval authorities here yesterday. No information as to the cause of the delay was available. The Henderson is expected to sail from Shanghai on July 21 for the United States with marines and navy personnel, who have completed their tours of duty in the Asiatics, and their families.

U.S.S. Luzon, flagship of the Yangtze Patrol, with Rear Admiral William D. Glassford aboard, left Shanghai about 3.30 yesterday afternoon bound for Nanking. The Luzon will remain in Nanking for about five days and will then return to Shanghai to be on hand when the Asiatic Fleet changes commands. The U.S.S. Pope will arrive in Shanghai on July 20 while U.S.S. Gold Star is expected to reach Shanghai on her health cruise from Guam on July 25.

Italians to Die for Smuggling Currency

Rome, July 9.

A Bill to impose a death penalty for grave cases of infringement of currency laws has been tabled for legislature for those who, in collusion with foreigners, are guilty of such acts prejudicial to national economy. Imprisonment has been raised to 24 years for those who habitually negotiated payments abroad by fradulent means.—Reuter.

Tigers Win Army Cup Polo

Allman in Smashing Goal-Getting Form, Hitting Six Goals; Braves Slacken in Final Chukker

By "The Chasse"

THE second match of the Army Cup Tournament series was played yesterday afternoon at the Race Course and resulted in a victory for the Tigers (W. H. Allman, C. B. Moller, Chester Fritz and Culbertson) who beat the Braves (Kent Lutey, A. Siemssen, E. B. Moller and R. Heyn) by ten goals to six.

The game was not as one-sided as the score would indicate, and it was in the last chukker that the Tigers ran riot over the Braves and tallied four successive goals without retaliation.

Allman was in one of his bright spells and was in smashing goal-getting form. In the four chukker match, he scored six goals for his side and several were difficult shots which drew much applause. C. B. Moller missed a couple of sitters but did his share by riding off the opposing back, leaving the way clear for the scorer.

Fritz, at No. 3, was playing a much better game than in the "British Cup" on Saturday and was hitting his customary long shots with accuracy, and scored the remaining four goals for his team. Culbertson played his usual game and fed his forwards with long passes.

Braves Combine Poorly

The Braves did not combine as well as the Tigers and were often found three together. The forwards were actually playing too much of a defensive game and were inclined to wait for the ball rather than meet it. The long passes from the back often went astray. Heyn found difficulty in making his handsome bay pony get into the thick of any play.

The Trgers, conceding three goals handicap, lost no time in attacking from the throw-in. C. B. Moller missed the ball at the goalmouth, but Allman was behind and tapped it through to register the first goal.

Culbertson fouled, but nothing resulted from Heyn's free hit. After a couple of minutes of field play, the Tigers again pressed and W. H. Allman swooped down on the goal to score. Before things had settled down from the throw-in, Fritz dashed away with the ball and scored from the boards. The bell rang a moment later.

Things looked pretty gloomy for the Braves with the Tigers already level in the first chukker but it was worst in the second when the Tigers put through three more without retaliation. Pressing from the throw-in, Fritz's long shot at goal missed by inches. They continued to press from the hit-out, but Culbertson hit behind, also missing by inches.

A moment later, Allman beat E. B. Moller in a race for the ball and scored with an "under the neck" shot while galloping at top speed. Lutey rushed the ball down when Heyn gave him an opening soon after the throw in, but Allman cleared to the boards. Fritz sent C. B. Moller away with a long pass, and just as he was taking a shot at the goal, E. B. Moller rode him off.

Allman Scores Thrice

Allman, following behind, was quickly on the ball, and with the goal directly in front, scored easily. A minute after the throw-in, the Tigers pressed and Allman scored his third goal of the chukker. E. B. Moller took a long shot at goal, as the bell rang, but it went wide by inches.

With the score standing at six goals to three against them at half time, the Braves came out with a vengeance and scored three times in the third chukker while the Tigers could not score at all. Pressing from the hit-out, Lutey scored. Culbertson took a 60-yard free-hit when the Braves fouled, but his shot was deflected by Siemssen.

Heyn then took the ball up to the middle of the field and took a long shot which E. B. Moller followed up to put in the net. The Tigers pressed, but Siemssen met Allman's shot at goal to clear. They continued to press, but C. B. Moller hit behind. Heyn missed an easy shot when near the goalmouth. Lutey made up for it a moment later by scoring, to tie the score at six all.

The final chukker was a rather disappointing one as the Braves went completely to pieces to allow the Tigers to run rough-shod over them and score four goals in quick succession. Fritz accounted for the first and after Allman had tallied, he added two more.

This afternoon, the third Army Cup match will be played. The match will start at 5.20 and will be between the Invincibles (N. F. Allman, G. W. Lacks, H. A. White and E. H. Browne) and the Veterans (C. S. Franklin, Maj. Gen. Keith Simmons, Maj. Neville and J. du Rivau.

French Marathon Cycle Race Starts

80 Competitors to Take Part in 21-Day Event

Paris, July 10.

The 33rd annual "Tour de France" cycling marathon, one of the most important sports events in Europe, is to start here today with 80 competitors entered in the 21 day-long race.

Cycling champions of several countries are entered for the gruelling contest, in which stamina, speed and endurance are severely tested over level and mountainous roads.

The race is to end on July 30 at the Parc des Princes here in Paris, after a tour of France. Only three rest days are permitted riders, who have to complete the long race in 18 stages.

No Italians are competing this year and last year's victor, Bartali of Italy, will therefore not be defending his title. Moreover, neither Germany nor Spain have entered teams.

Belgium has two strong teams in the running, however, and it is expected that the winner will be one of Belgian aces.

France has five national teams in the competition. Among the most highly favoured riders are Vietto, Cosson, Goasmat, Gallein and Gianello.—Havas.

German Wins French Auto Grand Prix

Victor's Car Caught on Fire in Refuelling

Rheims, July 9.

After his car had once caught on fire while he was refuelling, Mueller, German auto-racer, today won the Grand Prix of the French automobile Club, driving a German Auto-Union car to victory.

His time was 2 hours 21 minutes 11 sec. 8-10. He covered the distance of 398 kilometres at an average speed of 169 km. 638 per hour.

Second was Mayer, also a German speedster, driving another auto-Union, while third and fourth places were taken by the Frenchmen Lebegue and Etancelin respectively, both driving French Talbot cars. Sommer in an Italian Alfa Romeo was fifth.

There were in all 15 competitors, including seven Germans, five Frenchmen and three Italians.

The German ace, Caracciola, was well in the running until he crashed into a side wall. He was fortunately unhurt but he seriously damaged his car and was thus compelled to retire.—Havas.

German Speedster Wins In Record Time

Recognized World 800 Metres Mark Past

Berlin, July 9.

Running a great race, Rudolf Harbig today shattered the recognized world record for the 800 metres run when he covered the distance in 1 minute 49.4 seconds.

The record was held by the American runner, Robinson, who was timed at 1 minute 49.6 seconds.

Harbig's time, although better than Robinson's does not constitute a new world record, for the International Athletic Federation is now considering recognition of the record recently established by Wooderson, British champion, who ran the 800 metres in 1 minute 48.2 seconds.

Should Wooderson's mark not be recognized on technical grounds, Harbig's claims to the record will be considered.

While Harbig was setting his "record," Lieutenant Hoelling beat the European record for the 400 metres hurdles with 50.6 seconds.—Havas.

Softball Results

Three other games supported yesterday's league Softball programme. The Texaco scored a 9-5 victory over the Rowing Club at the American School, with a lead of 3-0 in the third inning and one more in the fourth. The Oarsmen rallied to gain a trio of runs in the fourth, but the Oil team countered five more in the second half of the frame. In the seventh, the losers tallied their last two runs.

The Race Club gained a narrow victory over the Jewish Recreation Club on the latter's grounds by four runs to two. Both sides tallied two runs in the opening but the visitors scored one each in fifth and sixth sessions.

At the Race Course, the Foreign Y.M.C.A. defeated the Columbia Country Club "Americans" by a score of 9-5. The "Y" team finished strongly to break a 5-all tie in the sixth inning and then wound up with three more in the seventh.

Mignon Registers First Win Of Season in "A" Class

Yachtsmen Enjoy More Favourable Weather But Find Wind Disappointing; Valerie First Home

YACHTSMEN were favoured at last with fine weather when they set out to compete for the 1st Leg of the "A" Class Challenge Cup on Sunday, but although, for a change, there was no rain, there was also very little wind.

It was a tack down almost to Kiaojow, that is to say, if drifting down with the tide without any wind to speak of can be called tacking. The fleet was soon strung out into three groups. Valerie in command of Sir Victor Sassoon for the last time for a few months, was in the lead as usual, followed by the redoubtable Viking and Ingomar, in the first group. Then came Ella and Mignon in the second group, followed by Seagull and Goo Goo who were keeping close company a long way behind.

The wind freshened about 11 o'clock, which enabled the leading yacht to reach the Lismore before 12 o'clock, and thus go out into the Yangtze to make the complete course round the Quarantine Buoy, to port.

Before reaching Lismore, Mignon passed Ella, and then the wind died down again, and it was some time before her lookout in the Crows Nest spotted the leading yachts out in the Yangtse. Valerie was finally discovered on an expedition away over at Bush Island, while Ingomar was well down to lee, evidently trying to join the cruiser race, and Viking was at anchor near the Quarantine, having a quick one.

Mignon's Good Luck

With the ever-slackening tide, and despite the lack of wind, Mignon and Ella were able to keep well up river to windward and pass the buoy to port without losing much ground. It was here that Mignon had a stroke of luck as the wind freshened just as she reached the buoy where a strong tide was running as usual. So spurning the invitation of the Viking to join her, she carried on and was able to head up river and gain ground on the port tack without much difficulty. Valerie was by this time already heading for Woosung, followed by Ingomar, who had worked into position by making short tacks over at Bush Island. Viking seeing the success attained by the leaders, hauled up her anchor and followed suit.

Later out came the Seagull and tried to round the Buoy by making short tacks in midstream, without going over to the slacker water at Bush Island. Evidently her skipper thought that if he held on long enough, the tide would turn. The wisdom of this manœuvre was not altogether apparant, as she lost a lot of time.

Unfortunately, there is no record of the fortunes of the Goo Goo out in the Yangtse as all the competitors were back again in the Whangpoo long before and she only got back to the Pipe Line just in time for the start back.

There was a luffing match between Viking and Mignon just before the Pipe Line was reached, with the result that Viking just pipped Mignon by 20 seconds.

After a hurried tiffin and hasty arrangements for the race home, a start was made at 3 o'clock. Spinnakers were set at the start, and in the Astrea channel, it was a reach. Genoa's Viking soon overhauled Valerie followed by Ingomar and Mignon. The Fleet were all back at moorings by 5 o'clock with the exception of Goo Goo.

On working out the handicaps, it was found that Mignon had won from Ella by 1 minute and 37 seconds thus registering her first win of the season.

The following are the corrected times:

Yacht	Sailed by	Corrected Times	Position
Valerie	Sassoon	6.31.30	3
Ingomar	Hart	6.43.16	5
Viking	Stabb	6.36.43	4
Mignon	Dalton	6.27.41	1
Seagull	Evans	6.48.00	6
Ella	Blakelock	6.29.18	2
Goo Goo	Woodfield	7.05.08	7

Daphne Wins "C" Class Yachting

Leda Unlucky Not to Be Winner After Finishing First in Two Legs

Three Shanghai Yacht Club's "C" Class races were sailed off the Club House over the week-end, comprising the 2nd Leg of the Challenge Cup Final, placings being based upon total points obtained in all three races.

In view of the good performance of Leda, sailed by J. C. Boldero, which finished first in both races on Sunday, it is all the more regrettable that this yacht had the misfortune to become firmly attached to a mooring wire whilst rounding the first buoy in Saturday's race. As she was leading at the time, she would have certainly finished well up and this would have given her the series: but by the time her skipper had freed her, the rest of the fleet was well ahead.

Saturday's race, which was sailed in a strong breeze requiring one reef, was won by Star of Eve, well sailed by Horey. It was unfortunate that Eileen and Mignonette were mislaid as to what was required at the down river mark buoy, and the latter in particular suffered the loss of many places after being well up in the lead.

Results for each race together with final placings are as follow:—

1st Race

1. Star of Eve (G. M. Horey, 0.59.35).
2. Eileen (J. Berents, 1.00.59).
3. Zuleika (J. C. Clavering, 1.01.25).
4. Daphne (D. Webb, 1.01.30).

7. Mignonette (F.H.E. Skyrme, 1.03.46).
8. Shimurali (C.W. Macpherson, 1.16.19).
9. Leda (J. C. Boldero, 1.45.00).

2nd Race

1. Leda (J. C. Boldero ,1.27.46).
2. Daphne (J. D. Riddell, 1.31.12).
3. Zuleika (J. C. Clavering 1.32.05).
4. Catherine (C. C. Todd, 1.32.52).
5. Eileen (J. Berents, 1.35.22).
6. Bridget (W. D. Pearson, 1.37.07).
7. Sun Lee (F. C. Warburton, 1.38.44).
8. Shimurali (C.W. Macpherson, 1.38.48).
9. Star of Eve (G. M. Horey, 1.43.37).
10. Mignonette (F.H.E. Skyrme, D.N.F.).

3rd Race

1. Leda (J. C. Boldero).
2. Daphne (D. Webb).
3. Zuleika (J. C. Clavering).
4. Eileen (J. Berents).
5. Catherine (C. C. Todd).

Sun Lee (F. C. Warburton), Bridget (W. D. Pearson), Mignonette (F. H. E. Skyrme), Star of Eve (G. M. Horey) and Shimurali (C. W. Macpherson) did not finish.

Final Placings

1. Daphne 14¼; 2. Zuleika 13; 3, Leda 12; 4, Eileen 11; 5, Catherine 10; 6, Star of Eve 9; 7, Bridget 8; 8, Shimurail 7; 9, Sun Lee 5½; 10, Mignonette 5½.

Lusitano in Running For Tennis Title

Portuguese Score Easy Victory Over C.S.F.

Scoring an overwhelming victory over the Cercle Sportif Francais in a postponed match of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis League on the Frenchmen's courts yesterday afternoon by 13 sets to two, Clube Lusitano kept right after the Japanese Tennis Club in the running for premier honours this season.

The Portuguese, who are present holders of the title, won all five matches from the C.S.F. The first two doubles were extremely hard fought. B. V. de Senna and A. S. Costa dropped the second set to John Berents and A. G. Mesie by 3-6 and took the first by 8-6 and the third by 6-3.

Humberto Collaco and L. Marcal were given the hardest opposition by Segalen and Indricksen. The Portuguese couple started out with the loss of the first set by 6-8 but rallied in time to garner the remaining two by 7-5 and 9-7. It was steadiness and confidence that pulled the winners through as the French players lost many important points at critical moments through being too enterprising.

Clube Lusitano bagged the remaining nine sets with scores as follows: Gutteirez and Canavarro beat Jourdan and Klein by 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. C. M. Collaco and Leitao beat Krenov and Rosenweig by 6-2, 9-7, 6-2. Gonsalves and da Silva beat Judah and Blum by 7-5, 6-1, 6-4.

Boston Makes Clean Sweep in Series with Yankees

First Time Since Building of Yankee Stadium That World Champions Have Dropped Five Straight

New York, July 9.

JOE Cronin's Boston Red Sox today completed a clean sweep of a five-game series with the New York Yankees by grabbing both ends of another double-header 4-3, and 5-3. It was believed to be the first time since the Yankee Stadium was built that the present world champions of baseball had lost five straight games on their home lot. Previously this season the Yanks had not lost more than twice in succession.

Cronin, shortstop-manager of the Red Sox, put the first game on ice with an eighth innings homer, scoring one man ahead of him. Jimmy Foxx duplicated this performance in the sixth innings of the nightcap, driving Bump Hadley to the shower. The Yankees' star rookie, Atley Donald, then went in to pion for the Yankees but it was too late to catch up.

The Washington Senators also took both ends of a double-header, beating Philadelphia by scores of 5-4 and 10-3. Emil Leonard and Kendall Chase pitched all the way for the winners. Bill Magle, rookie infielder of the Athletics, got two useless homers in the first game and Sam Chamman got an equally futile circuit blow in the seventh innings of the nightcap with one man on base.

The faltering Detroit Tigers dropped two games to the White Sox in Chicago 4-3 and 6-3.

Two ninth innings errors won the opener for the White Sox. Luke Appling led off with a single and advanced to third on Erio McNair's single. Earl Averill then dropped an outfield fly, letting Appling score the tying run. Marcum then grounded to Billy Rogell who fumbled and McNair scored with the winning tally.

Phillies Win at Last

After losing eleven consecutive games, the Philadelphia Phillies rose in revolt and took both ends of a double-header at Boston, 3-1 and 7-6.

The Bees executed four double plays in the opener but the Phils touched Danny MacFayden for 11 hits, stop Morris Arnovich led the way with three singles and a walk in four trips to the plate.

A sensational ninth innings rally won the nightcap. Two men were out and nobody on base and the score was 5-2 in favour of the Bees when the Phils got going. George Scharein started with a double.

LeGrant Scott and Arnovitch followed with singles that sent pitcher Milburn Shoffner to the shower. Johnny Lanning replaced Shoffner and pitched only to Merrill May who singled. Joe Sullivan replaced Lanning and yielded a home run to Emmett Mueller breaking up the game.

Six-hit pitching by Mort Cooper gave St. Louis a 7-3 victory in the first of two games at Pittsburgh. Johnny Mize hit a homer in the eight innings with the bases empty. Mize got another homer in the fifth innings of the nightcap but the Pirates emerged with an 8-6 victory

Buccaneers Retain Unbeaten Record

"Dud" Squires Hurls Shot Out Over Nationals For 4-0 Win in Softball

With C. C. "Dud" Squires pitching a shut-out, the Buccaneers accomplished a most cherished hope yesterday afternoon when they soundly defeated the Columbia Country Club "Nationals" on the latter's diamond by a score of 4-nil to remain the only unbeaten team in the Shanghai Softball League.

While "Dud" was doing superb work in the pitcher's box, his elder brother, Roy, rendered great assistance by pounding out a lofty shot over the fence surrounding the club compounds for a home run in the fourth innings. This tally led to a second run in the same frame when Jimmy Ward singled and ran all the way around the bases on a pair of errors chalked up by right-fielder Smith and third-baseman Huebner.

The Pirates made a second pair of runs in the sixth innings as the "Nationals" battery, composed of "Fuller" Malone and Walter Hebel, began to weaken.

Lewis Carson, the pirates' shortstop, made the game's first hit in the second half of the opening innings with a grounder between third and short. In the second innings Kent, the Columbians' shortstop, repeated the performance with the same shot. In the next half of the same session, "Dud" Squires rapped out a hot grounder through the pitcher's box.

The third frame was airtight, both sides retiring fast. Shots came in the fourth when Honeycutt, after Smith had grounded out, lammed out a short fly towards left field. Dr. Nance flied out, but Fielden slugged a hard low shot towards right field. But Kent popped out to Squires and ended the Columbians' hope to score.

Roy Squires Homers

Batting after M. Smith, who went out on a foul fly to Catcher Hebel, Roy Squires boomed a raking shot towards the right garden. Smith backed up but found he was helpless as the ball sailed clean out of the park. Ward followed up with a sharp single over first base. Smith, who just had the sad experience of seeing a homer come his way, booted the bouncing ball.

When he recovered, the runner had rounded second and was off to get third. Smith pegged to the hot corner but Huebner was blinded by the setting sun and allowed the ball to get away from his glove, thereby enabling Ward to dash across the rubber to the second run.

In the sixth frame, Malone weakened to walk Smith. Hebel allowed a pitched ball to pass and then the hurler threw a wild one to send Smith to the hot corner. Roy Squires walked and reached second as Hebel again allowed a passed ball. Ward belted a fly which was caught by Nance but on the throw-in, Smith scored. Ryan then singled Squires home to complete a 4-nil shutout.

More Submarines for British Navy

London, July 10.

Despite catastrophes like that of the Thetis, the British Navy is speeding up its programme of submarine constructions, the naval correspondent of the "Daily Express" stated this morning. New units will be placed in active service before schedule. Six submarines will be completed by the end of the year, while seven will be ready for duty in 1940.

The correspondent stressed that the Admiralty is pursuing its programme of construction without waiting for an improvement in safety devices.—Havas.

Plenty of Rice in Shanghai

Hot Weather Results in Unloading of Stocks As Storage Deteriorates

As the hot weather is unfavourable for rice storage those merchants and manipulators who have bought large stocks of grain are trying to sell their cargo as quickly as possible and, as a result, rice shops in town have more than enough rice for sale. Local Chinese have breathed a sigh of relief as the prices of the second and third grade rice is following a downward trend while the price for the first grade rice is quoted at $21 per picul which is the officially fixed price.

Apart from the fact that manipulators can no longer play against the public owing to the unfavourable weather condition rice boats carrying more than 4,000 bags of rice are reported to be arriving here daily from the interior. The ready stock in various godowns here alone will keep the Shanghai population well supplied for at least three months. Representatives from the Shanghai Municipal Council have been supervising transactions in the market daily.

Some merchants are also reported to be buying Saigon rice for local consumption and about 2,000 tons of the foreign grain are expected to arrive here next month. This business has been done with a local French firm serving as a middleman. Some orders placed in May have been cancelled, however, owing to the unfavourable changes in the foreign exchange market but the merchants are still keen about buying foreign rice.

Anti-British Meetings Held in Japan

Resolutions Cabled to Mr. Chamberlain

Tokyo, July 9.

An anti-British meeting, held in Kobe today, passed a resolution which was cabled to Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the British Prime Minister, Lord Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, and Sir Archibald Kerr, the British Ambassador to China.

Similar anti-British meetings were held today in other towns.—Reuter.

Soviets Show Anxiety to Sign Pact with France, Britain

British Impatience Brings Modified Plan After Longest Discussion Yet Held

Moscow, July 9.

WHILE the world rested on the Sabbath today, British, Soviet and French diplomats held a three-hour conference this evening to progress further along the road to a tripartite mutual aid pact. The Soviet Foreign Commissar, M. Viacheslav Molotoff, represented the U.S.S.R. at this meeting, which is the longest to have taken place since the arrival of Mr. William Strang, special British representative. In addition to Mr. Strang, participating in today's extra-long conference were Sir William Seeds, British Ambassador, and M. Paul-Emile Naggiar, French envoy.

It was understood that parleys dealt with the question of tripartite guarantees to the Baltic States and to Switzerland and the Netherlands. The meeting was the third in as many days, and this led to the growing belief that negotiations are advancing towards the long-set objective.

No final result is to be expected for a few days yet, however, since there are still several minor difficulties to be ironed out. The actual results of today's conversations were not disclosed this evening.

"Sir William Seeds, M. Paul-Emile Naggiar and Mr. William Strang were again received by M. Viacheslav Molotoff today. The meeting lasted more than two hours. No definite results were attained, "the official Tass news agency reported in a communique tonight.—Havas.

Soviets Anxious for Pact

London, July 9.

For the first time since tripartite parleys were launched, Soviet Russia today appeared ready and even anxious actively to co-operate and reach a speedy agreement with Britain and France, informed observers said tonight.

This modified attitudue was the result of a British warning to Moscow that London had reached the limit of concessions regarding mutual assistance in case of aggression against third Powers, they added.

The Soviet Government is now understood to have submitted a new formula, which arrived today and was immediately deciphered. This Note is to be the object of study by the Cabinet Foreign Affairs Committee which it was said, would shortly be summoned by the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain. The conference may be called for tomorrow.

Moscow's latest report is understood to exclude all clauses that might be interpreted as foreshadowing intrusion in the foreign affairs of nations to be guaranteed.

Official quarters contacted today refused to give any information. Newspaper editors were warmed that "inconveniences" might be caused by "premature information."

Meanwhile, Soviet quarters here insisted on the "considerable advantages" for the peace front to be derived from mutual aid pacts between Moscow, Warsaw and Ankara, as well as between Moscow, Paris and London.—Havas.

Nazi Party in Hungary Reorganized

U.S. Inventor Claims Found New "Rubber"

Synthetic Product Better Than German "Buna"

Chicago, July 9.

A cheap process for the manufacture of strong synthetic rubber, superior to the Buna Rubber produced in Germany, was announced here by Dr. Gustav Egloff, Director of the Universal Oil Products Company's research laboratories, after intensive experiments.

Dr. Egloff declared his experiments had reached such a stage and had yielded such good results that he believed his process could be put to commercial use.

He used butane gas, an inflammable gaseous hydrocarbon (C4H10) of the methane series, he revealed, and transformed, under catalytic action, molecules of butane into molecules of rubber. No other materials were necessary in his procees, Dr. Egloff stated, and the resultant product was stronger in certain ways than natural rubber.—Havas.

Italian Jews Sentenced

ANY BOY CAN MAKE A MOTOR

● For a thing so important to modern life, the electric motor is an amazingly simple device. Any bright boy can follow instructions and make one that will run.

But fitting electric motors to the world's work is a man's job. What makes it complicated is that every task, to be done efficiently, requires a certain kind of motor. Westinghouse, for example, makes over 20,000 different types, sizes and ratings.

Add to this, the thousands of other famous electrical products Westinghouse makes...for your home, for industry, commerce and power stations. Add also the more than fifty years' experience of this company. You will then more fully appreciate the wealth of electrical ability that is back of every product bearing the Westinghouse nameplate. You will better understand why any Westinghouse electrical product will give you the utmost in satisfaction, quality and performance.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

BRITAIN REARMS

There was something in the nature of a sensation when well-informed circles in London revealed last week that Great Britain now possessed 6,000 fighting, and 12,000 bombing planes, not only because of the totals given, but the rapidity with which they have apparently been reached. Those figures are to be taken rather as the expression of the condition of the British air force than as an exact total of the number of machines which Great Britain has at her disposal, for it has been just as much a portion of British policy, as it has of German, not to divulge exact information as to the growth of the air arm, and it will be noticed that official statements have always been careful to give no complete revelation as to its real strength. That was just as true when the British air force was admittedly lamentably weak, and the probabilities are that if the real truth were known, when first anxieties were expressed over Britain's air strength the situation was not quite so serious as it was then depicted. Added to British genius for understatement was the imperative necessity of awakening the nation from its complacency, and, as with regard to the navy, experts sounded a most disturbing note a few years ago, so did experts follow the same tactics when revealing their concern over the strength of the air force as compared with the large fleets of aeroplanes which other countries were alleged to be building up. It was good politics to do so, and, with developments in Europe such as they were at the time, it was the necessary fillip which not only spurred the Government on to better things but rallied public opinion behind it in solid support. So with the statement that Great Britain already possesses 18,000 'planes ready for service. The total is to be taken as figurative only, but of this there may be certainty, applying the same allowance for understatement to which reference has already been made, the chances are that that figure represents the least of what Great Britain has at her disposal. That may not be entirely true of quantity, but is undoubtedly true when the factor of quality comes also to be considered, for if war comes it will not only be numbers but efficiency of the machines which will ultimately tell.

That view is largely supported by the utterances of Mr. Neville Chamberlain when speaking at the opening of the new airport at Birmingham. He stated "I believed that our air force is in many ways the finest in the world, and I warn you that Sir Kingsley Wood does not tell you all his secrets. You may be quite sure that whatever he tells you has a great deal more behind it." When the state of British defences was revealed some five or six years ago, more particularly with regard to the condition of the Navy, the news came as a very great shock. The example of disarmament, which Great Britain had sought to set, had not been followed, and nations, which might become potential enemies, were busy piling up their armaments unto such an extent that without doubt Great Britain's voice in international matters had lost much of its authoritativeness. Within the next few months practically a whole new fleet will have been put into the water. Next week three cruisers will be launched, in the next few months the Duke of York, and the Beatty, 35,000 ton battleships, will be launched, four more cruisers are due for launching in the near future and with destroyers and submarines a formidable addition is being made to the British fleet which has already been enlarged since the first warnings were given. On land similar accretions in strength are being provided. Instead of the small expeditionary force it would have been possible to send to the Continent in the event of war, three-quarters to a million men will in a very short while be available. In the course of a long war the total it would be possible to raise would equal at least the figures of the Great War. Britain practically overnight, by the acceptance of the principle of compulsion, no matter how modified it may be in times of peace, has become a military as well as a naval power, and is now in a position to offer the completest co-operation with other Powers, with which she has an understanding, in resistance to any aggression which may be offered, or even contemplated. That is not all, the production of war materials, whether it be aeroplanes or rifle ammunitions has not yet reached its peak; it most likely will not do so except under the threat of actual war when many civilian undertakings would immediately be placed on war production, so that all things considered the confidence which is now being felt over the ability of Great Britain to defend herself may be now taken for granted.

When it was announced that Great Britain was preparing to spend something in the neighbourhood of £1,500,000,000 in all round rearmament over a period of five years, it was anticipated that the work would be completed somewhere around 1942. The programme has been enlarged and accelerated, with the result that the original scheme is much nearer completion than was originally expected. The first estimate has been exceeded, and while it is difficult to arrive at the exact figure, it is probably not very far out to suggest that some £500,000,000 extra will have been spent in speeding up the work of providing for adequate self-defence. It is possible that other countries might have been able to do what has been done much cheaper. Indeed some of them have done so, but it is generally believed that quality has been sacrificed in many important considerations, due to economic factors to the pressure of which Great Britain has, fortunately, not been subjected. It has always been British policy that Britain's sons shall not be asked to perform their duty to their country save with the finest equipment that money can buy or the wit of man conceive. This new armament, as up-to-date as it is possible to make it, is evidence of that fact, and if Great Britain is forced into war she will enter it as well, if not better provided for than probably any other nation in the world. And behind that equipment will be found a quality of manhood which has been surprisingly demonstrated in the course of registration of entrants for the militia. The health and constitution of British youth of today is better than that of the generations which fought twenty-odd years ago, and it will enter any new struggle with a high hand and a lofty courage. All this, however, should not be inducive of any more complacency; it is necessary that the closest watch and ward shall be maintained over the Empire and the means of defending it. It is unlikely that that imperative duty will be neglected, for it would indeed be a genius who could again lull the British into a sense of false security.

Anti-British Drive

It is commonly reported that the anti-British campaign now being sponsored by the Japanese in China and, to a lesser extent that in Japan itself, has been undertaken on the advice of the Axis partners in Europe. Of these partners, it is said, Germany is convinced of the uselessness of further major offensives in China by the Japanese army, believing that they can only be costly in terms of money and men and achieve little that cannot be attained in other ways. Of course, reports like these should be taken with every reserve, but the advice against major offensives, at least, is so sensible that it gives the whole rumour the ring of truth. The anti-British campaign in Japan is more easily accounted for by the desire of the Japanese army to build up such a powerful body of public opinion in support of their demands in the Tientsin dispute that the Tokyo government's hands will be forced, and moderate counsels in the forthcoming Anglo-Japanese conversations will not prevail. What the Japanese hope to gain by encouraging anti-British propaganda in China, it is a little difficult to understand. There could be no worse way of stopping British assistance to General Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese national government than by making it obvious that Britain's chances of trade in China are finished if the Japanese are allowed to have their way. Yet this is precisely what the Japanese—or better, the Japanese army—are doing. Apart from this fact, the prevention of normal trading by British factories in China creates a problem of unemployment which the Japanese or the Japanese-sponsored local governments will have to solve. With the country sadly in need of all the employment it can get, it is, to say the least, a shortsighted policy deliberately to deprive innocent workers of the chance to earn their living. And it does nothing to increase the confidence of the Chinese labouring classes in their new rulers.

The New Militia

Britain's new militia, the equivalent of Europe's conscript armies, is now in process of formation and training. The point which has attracted most comment is the high physical standard of the youngsters who have registered for service. Of the first 200,000 called up for examination an average of more than 80 per cent. were passed out physically fit. This is an extremely high standard and in the opinion of more than one medical examiner the youngsters are physically and mentally far better than the recruits examined for the "First Hundred Thousand" in September, 1914. One examiner adds:

> They are not much bigger in stature, but their teeth are good, their tonsils and adenoids have been attended to, and one does not see the bandy legs or knock-knees so common among the 1914 recruits. They have all a keen realization of what they are being called up for, and the very few who have been turned down for some physical defect look completely crestfallen.

Considering that the new militia are not even as old as "war babies" an important moral is to be drawn. The high physical and mental standard of the young men of today is undoubtedly due to the emphasis on social service, hygiene, and physical and menal education pursued since the end of the Great War. It all boils down to the idea that if A.-I. nation is wanted A.-I. methods must be employed, and this has been the lesson assiduously followed in Britain since the last war, not as an emergency for the production of troops but as a design for a better, more active and more vigorous people. One examiner quoted by the London "Daily Telegraph" draws attention to the importance of routine medical inspection of school children which is so largely responsible for the improvement in physique, and he adds he never expected to see so many perfect mouths without any decay or irregularities of the teeth—thus confounding a charge formerly held against the British people. An increased alertness of mind accompanies the improvement in physique and this the medical examiner associates with the fact that although they come from factories most of these establishments have sporting and recreational facilities such as swimming pools for their employees.

"But Not I"

THE parson had been preaching an hour and more on the immortality of the soul. "I looked at the mountains," he said, "and I thought 'Mighty as you are, you will be destroyed, but my soul will not.' I gazed at the ocean, and cried 'Vast as you are, you will eventually dry up, but not I,'" And then he wondered why a titter ran through the congregation!

Bewildered

"ARE you bewildered by any particular phase or aspect of life?"

—From a questionnaire.

We are bewildered by all phases and all aspects of it writes Lane-Norcott in the "Daily Mail."

We can't imagine why women put back the struck matches in the match-boxes, or what there is about a 'cello that makes a nightingale sing, or how the suit in the drycleaners' windows labelled "Before Cleaning" can be the same suit as the one labelled "After Cleaning."

We don't know why the spokes of wheels revolve backwards on the films, or what makes studio audiences laugh so uproariously (they can't all be related to comedians), or how business men who travel daily to their work in trains can endure to spend their summer holidays camping out in disused railway carriages.

We are bewildered by the useless little pockets that cats have in the side of their ears, and the senseless holes in brogue shoes, and the extraordinary desire, common to all seaside visitors, to have their photographs taken sitting in motor-cars on the ends of piers.

We can think of no logical reason why the fattest women invariably wear the shortest and tightest frocks, or how a key put down a person's back can stop his nose bleeding, or why people look exactly like their dogs, but never like their cats.

In fact, the only thing that we can clearly understand, toads, is our reason for writing like this. We do it to fill up the space.

British Guarantee To Poland Unshaken

Mr. Chamberlain Declares Danzig Problem Can Be Improved by Negotiations ; Resort to Force Against Polish Rights Will Be Resisted

London, July 10.

"IT is the general policy of His Majesty's Government to maintain respect for the integrity of small sovereign states. In particular, they are aware of the desire of Finland and the Baltic States to preserve their independence and neutrality, and as this is also the objective of His Majesty's Government, they will naturally take full account of these considerations in the present negotiations," declared Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, in a reply in the House of Commons today when questioned by several members regarding Britain's intentions towards the Baltic States.

Great Britain's determination to stand by her guarantee to support Poland in the event of a threat of aggression was reiterated by Mr. Chamberlain in his much-awaited statement on the Free City of Danzig. "Recent occurrences gave rise to fears that it is intended to settle its future status by unilateral action organized by surreptitious methods. If the sequence of events should be in fact such as contemplated on this hypothesis, Honourable Members will realize that the issue could not be considered purely a local matter but will at once raise graver issues affecting Poland's national existence and independence. We guaranteed to give assistance to Poland in case of a clear threat to her independence and we are firmly resolved to carry out this undertaking."

The Prime Minister then expressed hopes that the Danzig question could be settled by peaceful negotiations.

"I said that while the present settlement is neither basically unjust or illogical, it may be capable of improvement," he added. "It may be that in a clearer atmosphere, possible improvements could be discussed. His Majesty's Government realize that recent developments in the Free City have disturbed confidence and rendered it difficult at present to find the atmosphere wherein reasonable counsels can prevail. In face of this situation, the Polish Government remained calm and His Majesty's Government hope that the Free City may again prove that different nationalities can work together when their real interests coincide. Meanwhile, I trust that all concerned will declare and show their determination not to allow any incident in connection with Danzig to assume such a character as might constitute a menace to the peace of Europe."—Havas.

Polish Envoy Returns

British Tug Shot At in Tientsin

Japanese Soldier Hits And Wounds Men Aboard ; Protest to Be Filed

Tientsin, July 10.

Three men are in hospital as a result of an incident which occurred within the British zone on the Hai River at 3 o'clock this afternoon, in which the Saxon, a tug-boat owned by the Taku Tug & Lighter Company, was involved.

The Saxon was going up river with a lighter in tow when a Chinese sampan tried to hitch up to the lighter for a free ride. A Japanese soldier on the opposite side of the river—the ex-Russian Concession—immediately opened fire and wounded the helmsman of the tugboat in the head.

The next victim was a Chinese sailor of the Saxon, who was wounded in the arm. The soldier then hit the laodah of the sampan, who received a bullet in his chest. The whole caravan then made a dash for the British Bund, where they tied up.

The three wounded men were immediately rushed to the MacKenzie Victoria Hospital, where the condition of the helmsman was said to be serious.

The British police are investigating the incident.

British Protest Expected

Mr. E. G. Jamieson, the British Consul-General, it is understood, is making a very strong protest on the subject to the Japanese authorities.

Fire was aimed in the direction of the British Bund and it is extraordinary that no further damage was done by a possible ricochet bullet, as there are usually many Chinese and some foreigners on the Bund seeking relief from the suffocating heat, while a block further away is Tientsin's main thoroughfare, Victoria Road, with its tall buildings containing offices and flats.

An armed Chinese last night boarded and robbed a British-owned tugboat and lighter which were at anchor several miles down-river from Tientsin. The tug-boat and lighter, going up-river from Tangku, had anchored at the fourth cut to await the morning tide before proceeding to the D.K.K. wharf for examination. While at anchor, the lighter was boarded by an armed Chinese, who cut the tarpaulin, opened the hatch and made away with several bags of flour.—Reuter.

Primate of England On Danzig Crisis

Peace of Europe Should Not Depend on Single City

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, July 10.

It is inconceivable that the peace of Europe should depend upon the affairs of a single city, which surely should be capable of reasonable adjustment by negotiation, declared the Archbishop of Canterbury today at the Canterbury Diocesan Conference.

They must remember, he added, that the importance of Danzig lay not in its own affairs but, in fact, that what might happen there might show whether another of those cases of wilful, forcible aggression was to occur, which, if they were to remain unchallenged, would shatter all hopes of international order and peace.—Reuter.

Mr. McNutt Given New Post

Newly-Created Federal Security Agency

Washington, July 10.

Mr. Paul V. McNutt, U.S. High Commissioner for the Philippines who is resigning this month, has been offered a new high Government postion by President Roosevelt, it was disclosed here last night.

The President has offered Mr. McNutt the position of director of the newly-created Federal Security Agency which he is expected to accept this week.

Mr. McNutt's only condition in accepting the post, it was said, was that he be permitted to continue, with the President's sanction, his campaign for the 1940 Democratic Presidential nomination. Mr. Roosevelt was said to have agreed to this condition.

The newly created post carries a salary of $12,000 annually and consolidates the Social Security Board, the Federal Employment Service, the National Youth Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Public Health Service and the Office of Educaton. Formerly these offices were under the Department of Interior and were consolidated under the new directory in the President's recent governmental reorganization order.

Political observers attached considerable significance to the appointment since it appeared to indicate a closer friendship between Mr. McNutt and the President along future political lines than had been believed to exist.

As director of the consolidated bureaux, it was pointed out, Mr. McNutt will have an opportunity to come into close relation with important domestic problems from which he has been isolated in the Philippines for several years. Experience with these bureaux, it was pointed out, would add to Mr. McNutt's qualifications for the Presidency.—United Press.

Tientsin Talks Agenda Not Yet Settled

Britain Unaware Of Conditions to Tokyo Parleys

London, July 10.

No official representations have been made by the Japanese Government regarding the recent declaration made by Baron Keichiro Hiranuma, the Japanese Premier, when he laid down the conditions for reservations relative to the forthcoming Anglo-Japanese negotiations in Tokyo.

This statement was made in the House of Commons today by Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affaffirs, in reply to a question put by Mr. Arthur Henderson, Labour member for the Kingswinford division of Stafford.

Conditions at Tientsin again claimed the attention of the House of Commons today. Mr. Butler, replying to questions, recalled that Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, had already informed the House that the Tokyo negotiations would be conducted on the assumption by the British Government that outrages on Britons would end. The negotiations, he said, were expected to begin about the middle of next week.

Britons Passing Unmolested

Reports received by Lord Halifax, the Secratary of State for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Butler continued, indicated that a certain number of Britons daily passed the barriers at Tientsin, where restrictions had lately been less vexatious.

Sir Alfred Knox, Conservative member for the Wycombe division of Buckinghamshire, said surely something ought to be done to end the outrages, and asked if Great Britain was not in danger of losing her prestige in the Far East.

Mr. Butler replied that Sir Alfred Knox knew the situation had improved as a result of the British Government's representations.

Lieut.-Commander Fletcher, Labour member for the Nuneaton division of Warwickshire, said that while the British Government expected the outrages on Britons to cease, it had not said that it expected the Tientsin blockade to end.

Mr. Butler replied that the British Government's attitude on this subject had been indicated in the Prime Minister's statement on June 28.

Lieut.-Commander Fletcher asked if no conditions were laid down about the blockade.

Mr. Butler: "No. The position is as stated by Mr. Chamberlain."

Asked by Mr. P. J. Noel-Baker, Labour member for Derby, if the Government could assure the House that in the event of the negotiations going on, they would do nothing to prejudice the Japanese - Government's rights under international law, or recognize the legitimacy of the Japanese demands.

Mr. Butler: "I think I can give that assurance."—Reuter.

Talks to Begin This Week

Tokyo, July 10.

The Anglo-Japanese conference on the Tientsin controversy will probably be opened with a consultation between the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mr. Hachiro Arita, and Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, the British Ambassador, either July 13 or 14, it was predcited in Govermnent circles today. At Tuesday's Cabinet meeting Mr. Arita will report on the preparatory discussions which have taken place, and reach an understanding with his colleagues. All necessary preparations are expected to be completed tomorrow.

All vernacular newspapers today said that in the period since June 26, when the Japanese Government accepted the British proposal for a conference, Japanese public opinion has solidified in support of a demand for a "fundamental readjustment" of Japan's relations with Great Britain.

The dailies pointed to the strong attitude shown by Japanese authorities and the anti-British movements spreading in Japanese-occupied territories in China. A fundamental readjustment of Anglo-Japanese relations could not be brought about by a mere local settlement of the Tientsin question, the papers said.

The Japanese Government, in compliance with public opinion, will be compelled to request Great Britain in the conference to abandon her alleged

Japanese Military Forces Wire Off Three British Factories

Protest Lodged Over Action in Chapei on North Bank of Soochow Creek ; No Access to Jetties

FOLLOWING the wiring-off by the Japanese military authorities yesterday of three British-owned factories, situated along the north bank of the Soochow Creek in Chapei, a protest was lodged by the British Consular authorities against the denial of access to waterfront jetties owned by the three firms. Immediately following the Japanese action negotiations were opened by Major Hunt, Liaison Officer, who pointed out the difficulties attendant upon such action as most of the firms' trade was borne along the creek from the jetties, which are now wired-off.

The three factories concerned are the China Car & Foundry Co., the Zoong Zing Cotton Mill and the Chung Tah Cotton Mill, all of which are under British ownership. The three companies complained yesterday to the British authorities of the Japanese action, pointing out that unless the barricades were removed serious damage to trade would result as most of their trade was conducted by means of the creek.

Most seriously affected by the Japanese action will be the China Car & Foundry Co., manufacturers of heavy goods, including rolling stock. Practically all the goods manufactured by this firm are loaded on to barges and other river craft at the Soochow Creek jetties, while most of the employees of all three companies have entered the factory premises by means of sampans coming from the Settlement side.

Entrance Only Over Bridges

As a result of the Japanese action the only entrances to the factories will be over bridges, guarded by Japanese soldiers. As most of the employees of the cotton mills are women, it is felt that there will be serious objections on their part to this method of entrance as all persons crossing the bridges are searched by the soldiers.

According to the Japanese military authorities the wiring-off of the mills is part of a general scheme to wire the whole North bank of the Soochow Creek for some considerable distance so as to prevent the infiltration into the Western areas of the Settlement of undesirables, who, the Japanese state, have crossed over by means of the creek.

There is absolutely no question of discrimination against the factories because they are British-owned, it was stated, the properties having been wired-off owing to their position on the north bank of the river.

Two Companies Operating

Both the China Car & Foundry Co. and the Zoong Zing Cotton Mill are working at present, but the Chung Tah Cotton Mill, which was prevented from resuming operations after the hostilities as the Japanese did not recognize the British ownership, has not commenced operations yet.

This mill was handed over to its owners in May after lengthy negotiations and has been left in charge of caretakers while machinery and buildings have been undergoing repairs prior to starting work there. All three mills face the Italian defence sector in the Western extra-Settlement area.

Thetis Listed to Port at Outset

Sensational Evidence Given at Inquiry by Cammell-Laird Man

London, July 10.

A sensation was created during today's hearing of the inquiry on the Thetis disaster when John Rowe, assistant foreman employed by Messrs. Cammel-Laird, asserted that the submarine was sent out on its trial with a slight list to port.

Rowe declared that a few hours before the submarine left on its trial, he noticed that it was listing slightly to port. He informed his employers, who decided to look into the matter. Just before the vessel was sent out, Rowe was asked to inspect the ship again to see whether it was still listing. To his amazement, the list was even heavier than before, having increased by about a centimetre.

Rowe then stated that "someone" suggested that the starboard torpedo-tubes be filled in order to balance the craft.—Havas.

Counsel Rebuked by President

A protest at a suggestion—described by the President as misleading and unfair—that there was a delay in the Thetis salvage operations, was voiced by Counsel, when the inquiry into the disaster was resumed today.

Counsel for the relatives of an apprentice suggested that nothing had been done regarding salvage by 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the day following the disaster.

Counsel for Messrs. Cammell Llaird, builders of the submarine, protested and declared that the suggestion was improper as salvage gear was ready to proceed to the spot at that time, and when the first Counsel maintained that this fact justified his contention, the President remarked: "To suggest nothing was done until 5 o'clock in the afternoon is rather misleading and unfair."—Reuter.

Dr. Havelock Ellis Dies at 80 Years

Renowned Psychologist On Sex Passes After Remarkable Career

London, July 9.

Dr. Havelock Ellis, one of the world's greatest psychologists on sex, died at the age of 80 at 11.15 p.m. yesterday, it was confirmed here today. The noted author died of old age at his home, Cherry-ground, at Hintlesham where he retired a year ago.

Dr. Ellis made sex respectable. Perhaps more than any single figure of the turn of the century his brilliant explorations in a field little known except to a few investigators and scholars swept away the taboos investing sex with the stigma of the obscene.

He was at once a searching inquistor and a trenchant writer with a prose described as "vigorous and dynamic, rhythmic and balanced." This happy combination helped to instill his conclusions in the minds of those who, at first, read him covertly, then sang his praises aloud.

In his last years Dr. Ellis was a kindly philosopher basking in the warming sun of universal admiration, content to emit from his rustic retreat leisurely, beautifully written discourses on whatever came to mind and thankful that he was better known in America than his native England. "I greatly prefer to be at a comfortable distance from whatever fame I possess," he told a friend.

Early Difficulties

In his earlier years he was the object of a vicious attack by British Comstockians and suffered the brutal blow of having one of his great researches branded "an obscure body." He lived, however, to see the way when he could write humorously that "a society containing eleven Bishops" was imploring him to write a textbook.

Dr. Ellis, later to become a social psychologist, philosopher and author, was born the son of a seafaring man in England in 1859, the same year Darwin's "Origin of the Species" was published. In his boyhood he followed his father to Australia and spent four years in thein the Bush. An adolescent, far from the restraints of civilization, he pondered the mysteries of awakening sex and determined—he was only 16—to make its study his life work.

After a brief period teaching school he returned to England and embarked on the study of medicine. About this time he came into contact with John Addington Symonds who had published his two studies of sex abnormality. There followed years of painstaking inquiry and in 1897 he published the first of his momumental "Studies in the Psychology of Sex."

Book Adjudged "Obscene"

Scholars and the profession hailed the work as a long advance in the study of sex but others centered a relentless attack on it. Unfortunately the book dealt with abnormality which Dr. Ellis had treated only as a necessary phase of his research and it was condemned after trial as "obscene."

For some years thereafter this book was published only in Germany and the United States and his name became anathema to "nice people." As an example of the extreme to which agitation against him was carried even the Mermaid series of old dramatists, which he edited, was viewed with suspicion.

Nevertheless Dr. Ellis kept on inquiring and writing and finished five

Air University to Add Course on Television

Boston Station to Broadcast Technical Instruction

Boston, July 10.

Short-wave radio listeners now may attend television classes in their own homes. Station WIXAL, non-profit radio station here, has added a course, "Practical Television," to its World University of the Air curriculum.

Lectures will be broadcast each Monday at 8 p.m., E.S.T., in the eight-week course which begins May 15. A printed text, complete with diagrams and illustrations, helps "students" follow the instructor in the one-hour lessons. Dr. C. Davis Belcher, widely-known radio engineer who conducts the course, employs a master blueprint which listeners, using their texts, can follow as he traces the new television circuits.

The regular lectures are broadcast over wavelengths of 6.04 and 11.73 megacycles. For listeners on the West Coast, Hawaiian Islands and Australia, the lectures are repeated by electrical transcription at 11.30 p.m., E.S.T. For European and South African students, the recording is repeated each Friday at 4 p.m., E.S.T. over wavelengths of 11.79 Mc. and 15.13 Mc.—United Press.

Britain's Blackout Manoeuvres Prove Completely Successful

South-Western Third of All England Shut Off Lights During R.A.F. "Bombing Raids"

London, July 10.

British military officials last night pronounced Britain's blackout manoeuvres against air raids Saturday night a complete success.

Only two casualties were reported in the blackout zone, which covered almost one third of England. Mr. Jack Boulton, a Boy Scout master, suffered an injured knee at Weymouth when he tripped over a curb in the darkness. Mr. Emil Grant, acting Air Raid Precautions umpire at Finchley, was out on the forehead and shocked when a rocket representing a bomb exploded near him.

Experiments with luminous police clothing were successful except at Hastings where ultra violet lights dimmed them.

Public co-operation in the manoeuvres was said to have been excellent although in some places families had to be requested to lower their window shades or dim the lights of their automobiles after the air raid alarm was sounded.

Fifteen counties in south-western England, covering 16,000 square miles or almost one third of the country, were in darkness from 11 p.m. on Saturday night until 4 a.m. on Sunday while Royal Air Force planes "raided" the area in the biggest "blackout" in British history.

For the first time since the Great War, lights along 250 miles of the Sussex and Kentish coastline were extinguished.

The "raid" and blackout were a dress rehearsal for the bigger blackout planned for August 10 when Greater London will be included in the "raid" area.—United Press.

"Mopping-up" on Border

Japanese Claim Control of Holsten River and Balshagal Hill ; Heavy Artillery Duels

COMBINED Japanese and Manchoukuo forces are "cleaning up" remnants of Soviet and Outer Mongol troops south of the Holsten River, as well as at Balshagal Height, north of the river, according to a Japanese field dispatch received here today.

Describing the delta between the Holsten and Khalka Rivers, the dispatch says it is interspersed with marshes and sand-dunes and, consequently, puts difficulties in the way of progress by the Japanese forces. All day yesterday, the message adds, artillery duels took place.

Soviet and Outer Mongol artillery on the west bank of the Khalka River is said to have opened fire at eight o'clock in the morning, with the Japanese guns immediately replying. The duels were punctuated with aerial combats and tank warfare.

Both the Japanese and Soviet artillery displayed efficiency, says the report, which praises the Soviet artillerymen by saying that several Soviet shells fell as far behind the Japanese lines as a point near a Japanese field hospital.

Positions Bombed

At one o'clock in the afternoon, the message continues, Japanese bombing squadrons, followed by a group of pursuit 'planes, appeared over the fighting zone and effectively attacked the Soviet and Outer Mongol positions along the western bank of the Khalka River.

Shortly after 7 p.m., when the Japanese pursuit 'planes had left the fighting zone, more than a dozen Soviet bombers bombed the area lying between a Japanese field hospital and the first line.

The raiders are reported to have been greeted with anti-aircraft fire and to have been pursued by Japanese fighting 'planes. They are said to have retreated to Outer Mongol territory "afer dropping their bombs indiscriminately."

At 9 p.m., the Soviet artillery positions on the western bank of the Khalka River re-opened fire, but, this time, the dispatch says, the firing was "apparently at random."

The Japanese are reported to have captured over 50 tanks and armoured cars and a large number of guns, including three 15-centimetre howitzer guns and two field-guns. The Howitzer guns, the dispatch says, were in good order and the Japanese trained them on the Soviet and Outer Mongol troops fleeing across the Khalka River, inflicting heavy casualties.

One thousand Soviet sharp-shooters, with 40 tanks and over 100 armoured cars, it adds, managed to flee to the western bank of the River, where, however, they were subjected to heavy fire by the Japanese.

The Soviet and Outer Mongol troops, the report concludes, left over 600 dead, while over 100 Soviet tanks and armoured cars are said to have been disabled in the delta between the Khalka and Holsten Rivers.—Reuter.

Control Predicted

Tokyo, July 10.

A message from the field of operations predicted that the Japanese and Manchoukuoan froces would be in complete control of the border within two or three days, after driving the invaders across the Khalka River, which forms the boundary.

In yesterday's fighting the Soviets and Outer Mongols left more than 600 dead, while more than 100 Soviet tanks and armoured cars were disabled in the delta between the Khalka and Holsten Rivers, the message said.

Eight foreign correspondents left Hailar for the front to witness the fighting in the Nomonhan sector. The delta region between the two rivers is dotted with marshes and sand dunes, adding to the difficulty of operations, the message stated.

Yesterday artillery duels were fought from dawn to dusk, according to the dispatch, which credited the Soviet gunners with displaying accuracy. Soviet and Outer Mongolian field pieces on the western bank of the Khalka River opened a bombardment at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and Japanese artillery responded immediately.

Firing was resumed at intervals of one hour. As shells boomed over the plains, tank and air units clashed. No details were received concerning the results of yesterday's aerial combats.

At twilight the Soviet fire ceased and an ominous silence settled down over the vast expanse of plains where embattled troops crouched in the darkness waiting for another attack.—

88 Planes Said Shot Down

A Japanese Army Air Base, July 10. Japanese Army aircraft shot down 59 Soviet planes in a clash over the Khalka River on the western frontier or Manchoukuo early this afternoon, Japanese Air Force commanders claimed. Six more were believed to have been downed, bot reports of their destruction were not confirmed.

One Japanese plane did not return to its base.

In a clash with 40 Soviet fighting planes over Lake Buir at about 7 p.m. on Sunday a Japanese Army air unit shot down 29 planes, seven of them 1.15 models and 21 of the 1-16 type, Japanese commanders said.

In this combat one Japanese plane piloted by Sergeant-Major Toshi Nakada did not return to its base.

Four Japanese detachments captured the only fording place on the Khalka River in the present zone of hostilities at 11 o'clock this morning, thus preventing the retreat of about 2,000 Soviet and Outer Mongolian troops.

The ford was taken following a general attack on a 15-km. front launched by Japanese detachments at 5 a.m. against Soviet and Outer Mongolian troops holding one corner of Balshagar height.

The invading forces had been offering stubborn resistance under cover of artillery fire from hills on the opposite bank of the river. Part of the Outer Mongolian and Soviet troops were retreating northward along the east bank of the river, with Japanese forces in pursuit.

Japanese Army planes bombed Outer Mongolian and Soviet positions early this morning. A bridge over the River was destroyed by Japanese planes.—Domei.

Hankow Concession Threatened

Wuhan Authorities Pick Quarrel With French Over Check to Demonstration

Hankow, July 10.

Relations between the Wuhan Special Municipality and the local French authorities further deteriorated here today as the Chinese authorities sought the release of Chinese arrested in the French Concession on July 7.

In a written protest addressed to Acting Consul Reynaud, Mr. Chang Jen-li, mayor of the Special Municipality of Wuhan, this morning presented three demands. These were:—

1. A formal apology for interfering with a movement for the establishment of a new order in East Asia.

2. The immediate release of arrested members of the Central China Young Men's Association, still being detained by the French authorities, and.

3. The return to the Municipality of Japanese and Chinese five-barred flags and handbills seized in the French Concession on July 7.

In addition, Mr. Chang openly intimated today that the Special Municipality would resort to the "isolation" of the French Concession unless the French authorities revised their attitude.

Mr. Chang contended that the French authorities were "blindly ignoring the desire of the citizens of the triple cities to establish a new order in East Asia."

The dispute arose over the arrest by the French authorities of members of the Central China Young Men's Association on July 7 as the latter were about to launch a demonstration in the French Concession by distributing flags and handbills.

The French authorities contended that while they had authorized the distribution of the flags, they would not permit the scattering of handbills.—Domei.

Ship Runs on Shore Off Korea

Houston City Grounds on Quelpart Island in Dense Fog Damaging Bottom

Having run aground on Quelpat Island in a heavy fog last week, the 10,000 ton motor ship, Houston City, is now in drydock at the Yangtszepoo Dock with considerable damage to her bottom, well below the water line. The ship left Shanghai on July 3 bound for Rashin in North Korea to pick up a cargo of beans for the United Kingdom. As she neared Quelpat Island, off South Korea the vessel was caught in a dense fog and ran aground on the island.

No sooner had she grounded than a Japanese surveyor came aboard with intent at salvage. The captain of the Houston City declined all offers of salvage and declared that he would get the vessel afloat under her own power. The surveyor told him that it was impossible, but in spite of this the skipper persisted in his efforts and finally got the vessel afloat and set her about for Shanghai. Fine weather was experienced all the way here and the ship arrived in Shanghai without further mishap.

The extent of the damage was considerable and it is undecided whether the ship will undergo repairs here or not. That matter rests with the underwriters in London. The vessel was built in 1924 and is one of the ships belonging to the William Reardon Smith Line of Cardiff.

Italian Army Try Alpine Moves

Mechanized Units to Show Strength in August Exercises

Rome, July 9.

Although Italian officials have frequently denied reports giving an extraordinary character to the impending August manœuvres of the troops in the River Po region, the press continues to attach considerable significance to them.

The Po region Army includes three light and speedy corps which will leave the Veneto region westward for the Alps for their manœuvres.

The "Popolo d'Italia" says the theme will be testing the possibility of utilizing three large units each possessing different armaments and organizations, although all equipped with the most modern of mechanized units. A large number of tank squadrons will take part in the exercises and will be thoroughly tested under rigorous conditions.—Havas.

Wang Ching-wei Has Own Press

Newspaper and Agencies Are Acquired to Disseminate His Political Gospel

Coming as a bolt from the blue people in Shanghai will be taken unawares today by the fact that Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the expelled deputy chief of the Kuomintang, will start his political fight as a peace maker in the open here with a Chinese daily and several Chinese news agencies supporting him. His latest political views in regard to the Sino-Japanese relations contained in a long statement was published yesterday by the "Chun Hwa Jih Pao" as it was widely circulated on Sunday night among Chinese language newspapers.

Members of the editorial staffs of the various foreign owned Chinese language newspapers on Sunday night were very much surprised when several Chinese news-agencies, the policies of which have not been in keeping with that adopted by Mr. Wang, suddenly issued his long statement and it was suggested that they might have been bought over. Doubt was expressed by the Chinese press circles that the statement would be published by other Chinese language newspapers excepting the "Chun Hwa Jih Pao" long considered to be Mr. Wang's organ which resumes publication today after more than one year's suspension.

Publisher from Hongkong

It was reliably learnt that Mr. Lin Peh-sen, former publisher of the paper, is now in town having come here from Hongkong where an attempt on his life was made some months ago. It was stated in Chinese press circles that he would again be responsible for the publication. The long statement which elucidates a statement said to have been made by Dr. Sun Yat-sen that the success of the Chinese revolution depends much on the Japanese understanding was published by Mr. Lin's paper yesterday. Mr. Lin was member of the Legislative Yuan of the Kuomintang government in Nanking and he has been an ardent supporter of Mr. Wang.

The fact that a new Chinese news agency called "Woo Sheng" or "Shanghai's Voice" treated Mr. Wang's statement as the main story on Sunday night indicated that apart from the daily Mr. Wang's subordinates have a news-agency of their own advocating peace with Japan. The statement was published by several other Chinese news-agencies although in some cases it was abridged.

The recent suspension of six foreign-owned Chinese newspapers, which had been more or less pro-Chungking, has left the way clear to some extent for Mr. Wang to start his political career anew in Shanghai Mystery still surrounds the suspension of some of the papers. The Wen Wei Pao" or "Standard", which was suspended by British authorities but which was later allowed to resume publication, has never appeared in the streets since. Members of the editorial staff of this paper announced some time ago that they would not continue their service unless the paper would maintain its original policy. Following that announcement the paper has not yet resumed publication.

Newsboys Refuse to Sell

Mr. Wang's paper was well distributed to newsboys yesterday for sale but they refused to do so. When approached by the reporter for a copy of the new paper one newsboy said that he had the paper but that he would not sell it without giving reasons. The only reference made by the foreign-owned Chinese newspapers to the new paper appeared in an evening paper which denounced Mr. Wang's paper as being unpatriotic in nature. The paper is said to be the second "Sin Shun Pao" and Mr. Wang's statement is considered to be a "country-selling statement."

Mr. Wang's statement which was also broadcast on Sunday night was published in full as the main story of the "Chun Hwa Jih Pao" or the "Central China Daily News". Under the subject of his statement there is Mr. Wang's printed signature. An editorial note is attached to the article serving as an introduction. The note urges the people to follow Mr. Wang's idea of making peace with Japan in order to wipe out communists and to save the "party" and country from danger. As Mr. Wang does not advocate a new party, the word "party" here may mean that the new political group under Mr. Wang still considers itself affiliated with the Kuomintang. The statement covers the whole of the main page.

Other news items, some of which were also published by foreign-owned Chinese language newspapers, appear in Mr. Wang's paper also. There is also a pictorial supplement in which news pictures of international interest are printed. Excepting Mr. Wang's statement which is not published by any other Chinese language newspaper, the new paper bears the appearance of an ordinary Chinese daily.

Municipal Advocates Report

The Municipal Advocate states in his report that a total number of 10,738 cases were prosecuted in the Shanghai First Special Area District Court and the Kiangsu High Court, Second Branch, during the month of June, as compared with 12,174 cases in May. Presentations to Police Officers

Colleagues Honour Chief Inspector Phillips and D.S.I. Alec Rhind

Following their retirement from the Shanghai Municipal Police after many years' service two popular officers were the recipients of gifts from their colleagues in the Force on Saturday and yesterday. They were Chief-Inspector C. G. Phillips and Detective Sub-Inspector A. Rhind respectively, both of whom will be leaving Shanghai in the near future.

Many glowing tributes to the work of Mr. Phillips were paid by Mr. R. W. Yorke, Assistant Commissioner, at the Bubbling Well Station on Saturday when the presentation of a gold watch and chain, a set of crested tie pins and cuff links and a silver pickle fork and spoon (for Mrs. Phillips) took place.

Mr. Yorke, humorously referring to Mr. Phillip's West Country birth, stated that his excellent qualities as a policeman and the fact that during the hot weather he seemed to have more energy than six other men probably were due to this fact. Mr. Phillips suitably replied and was accorded musical honours by the gathering. After leaving Shanghai he will settle down on the West coast of England. He has served for 25 years in the Police Force.

Sterling Qualities

The presentation of a suitably inscribed onyx writing set to Mr. Rhind was made by Mr. H. D. M. Robertson, A. C. P., the Police Club in Foochow Road yesterday evening in the presence of a large gathering of his colleagues.

D.S.I. Rhind joined the Police Force in 1925 and has been attached to the Detective Branch for the major portion of his service. He has been attached to the Special Branch, Crime Headquarters and has acted as senior detective at Footoo Road, Gordon Road and Chengtu Road stations. Since May 15, 1937 he has been in charge of the Narcotics Section, Police Headquarters. With his wife he is leaving Shanghai to take up a civilian position in the Federated Malay States.

In making the presentation Mr. Robertson referred to the sterling qualities of good fellowship which he had displayed since joining the Force. For the last fourteen years, he said, Mr. Rhind had been a member of the C.I.D. and had always done his best to enhance the reputation of the Force and for the comfort and well-being of his fellows.

Ten Commendations

He referred to the fact that Mr. Rhind had received ten commendations, including one from the United States Government for his efforts in tracking down a dangerous band of drug traffickers. "I think he is one of those men, whose ambition was to leave the Force better than he found it," Mr. Robertson concluded, "and I think he was successful there."

In reply D.S.I. Rhind stated that he could not have worked in a better environment than that provided by the S.M.P. The Shanghai policeman was an admirable fellow, he said, unflinching in the fact of danger and a good comrade. Despite the beauty of their gift to him it could not replace them in his heart. "For he's a jolly good fellow" and a toast to Mr. and Mrs. Rhind concluded the proceedings.

Fleet Changes Hands July 25

Admiral Hart to Relieve Admiral Yarnell of Command of U. S. Asiatic Fleet Here

REAR Admiral Thomas Charles Hart will relieve Admiral Harry E. Yarnell as Commander-in-Chief of the United States Asiatic Fleet on July 25 in Shanghai, according to information received from official naval circles here yesterday. Admiral Hart will arrive in Shanghai in the ss. President Coolidge on July 19 while the flagship of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, the Augusta, with Admiral Yarnell aboard, will arrive here and take her place at the head of battleship row in the Whangpoo River on July 18.

Admiral Yarnell has designated July 25 as the day on which the change of command will take place. The quarterdeck of the flagship will be the scene of the impressive ceremony in which Admiral Yarnell will read his orders and turn over command of the fleet to Admiral Hart who will read the orders making him Commander-in-Chief to the assembled staff and crew of the Augusta. Following this Admiral Yarnell's flag will be lowered and Admiral Hart's flag run up in its place.

Upon assuming command of the Asiatic Fleet, Admiral Hart will immediately take the rank of full admiral, one of the only four full admirals in the U.S. Navy. The other three four star admirals are the Chief of Naval Operations, the Commander-in-Chief U.S. Fleet and the Commander of the Battle Force, U.S. Fleet.

Admiral Hart comes to Shanghai from Washington, D.C., where he was until recently Chairman of the General Board of the Navy Department. He was born in Davison, Michigan, on June 12, 1897. He entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, and was graduated in 1897.

Ensign in 1899

The Admiral received his commission as ensign in 1899 and thus began a career both long and honourable in the U.S. Navy, a career which leads him on June 25 to the rank of Admiral. He graduated from the Naval War College in 1923, the Army War College in 1924 and was commissioned Rear-Admiral in 1929.

He has seen consderable action in his naval career and is the holder of the Distinguished Service Medal. He served in Cuban waters during the Spanish-American War and was Commander of Submarines in the waters of the British Isles and the Azores in the World War. The Admiral is no stranger to the Far East, having commanded U.S.S. Beaver of the Asiatic Submarine Flotilla from 1920 to 1922. From 1922 until 1927 he was with the United States Fleet having command of U.S.S. Mississippi. He returned to submarines in 1929 and was commander of submarines of both Atlantic and Pacific fleets from 1929 until 1931.

Naval Academy Superintendent

In 1931 Admiral Hart was appointed Superintendent of the U.S. Naval Academy which position he held until 1935. Following his service at the Naval Academy he was designated as commander of cruisers of the Scouting Force of the U.S. Fleet. He was relieved of this command some time later and was ordered to Washington to become a member of the General Board of the Navy Department.

Admiral Yarnell leaves in the Coolidge on August 1.

Counterfeit Notes On Exhibition

Interesting Collection is Displayed at Bankers' Club Showing Forgers' Skill

In these days of uncertainty which gives a golden opportunity to counterfeiters to flood the Shanghai market with fake money it is timely for the Shanghai Exchange Bankers Fellowship Club at 50 Ching Yuan Li, Peking Road near Honan Road, to hold an exhibition of counterfeit bank notes, both foreign and Chinese for the benefit of the public. More than 500 counterfeit notes were on display yesterday and the exhibition will last for a week.

The club was formed about three months ago having more than 400 members and although it aims primarily at promoting friendship and discussing monetary problems among bank assistants themselves they have deemed it wise to hold the exhibition to render the public a useful service. It was learnt that members of the club possess counterfeit notes representing a face value of more than $200,000 which at present they have not found room enough for their exhibition. They will be exhibited later for the benefit of refugees.

The reporter was surprised yesterday to see many counterfeit foreign bank notes purporting to be issued by such well known institutions as the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corporation and Chartered Bank of India Australia and China. They were exhibited in a separate room together with many other counterfeit foreign notes some of which were not meant for local circulation, indicating the extensive operations of counterfeiters. Some of the notes are supposed to be in circulation in Singapore and Hongkong and on one kind of these notes the words "Government of Hongkong" are clearly printed.

There was fake Russian and German money on exhibition too but these counterfeit foreign notes were printed long ago. All the counterfeit foreign bank notes are of various denominations from $1 to $100 and most of them are so well printed that they may deceive the eyes of many.

One may just well study the history of the Chinese currency in the exhibition rooms for counterfeit notes printed between the dynasty period and the present-day China are there on display. There are counterfeit notes purporting to be issued by practically all Chinese government banks existing today. Many of them look like genuine ones and for the benefit of visitors genuine ones cut in two halves showing both the front and back are exhibited near the counterfeit ones.

It was pointed out by those in charge of the exhibition that the most deceptive ones are those notes which, while bearing the exact appearance of genuine ones, have the numbers indicating their denominations changed. In such a case a genuine note is no longer genuine because its numbers have been rubbed off and changed into bigger ones.

Guerillas Driven Off by Japanese

Four Men Held Up in Boat Manage to Shoot Way to Safety; All Wounded

Wounded in a 30-minute combat with about 60 Chinese guerillas at Tangsichen, 20 kilometres north of Hangchow, four Japanese civilians employed by the Shanghai Inland River Steam Navigation Company, were admitted to the Foo Min Hospital, North Szechuen Road, on Saturday, the local Japanese press reported yesterday.

The group of four men, consisting of Mr. Yoshio Mori, manager of the Hangchow branch of the Shanghai Inland River Steam Navigation Company, Mr. Katsunosuke Murakami, Mr. Hiromi Nakamura, and Mr. Koiiro Koike, left Hangchow at 7 o'clock in the morning of July 5 to investigate a river route to Shanghai and Soochow by way of Kashing, the newspapers said. As they were about to moor their vessel, the Binko Maru, at Tangshichen at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, they were attacked by about 60 Chinese armed with rifles and hand grenades.

Guerilla Leader Killed

Returning the fire with their arms, the Japanese succeeded in holding the Chinese at bay. When a man, who seemed to be the leader of the irregulars was downed by a shot fired by Mr. Nakamura, they fled, the papers said.

At the sound of the firing, the Japanese garrison at Kungchenkiao, south of Tangsichen, rushed to the scene of the fighting but arrived too late to engage the guerillas.

Three of the four Japanese were seriously wounded, Mr. Nakamura in the abdomen, Mr. Koike in the head, and Mr. Murakami at six different places. All will live.

Mr. Mori alone escaped with abrasions and bruises. They were all treated at a Japanese hospital at Hangchow before being brought here.

Opinion was divided among the victims of the attack as to whether the Chinese were local guerillas or stragglers of the 73rd Chinese Army division, the newspapers said.

Wounded Robber Will Face Court

Man Hit 8 Times Expected To Recover

Shot eight times by the police but still alive and lying in the Police Hospital, Lee Tze-min, a robber, is expected to recover to answer charges in the First Special District Court where yesterday the police applied for a writ of his detention. Lee was one of the trio who victimized a cigarette and exchange shop at 1297 Yu Yuen Road last Saturday and was caught after he had failed to shoot his way to freedom. His two accomplices escaped with $20.

The robbers were unlucky because after they had stolen the money they forgot to take notice of a Japanese customer in the shop who quickly made a report to constables on duty near a Japanese cotton mill. The officers at once took up the chase but while his two confederates had gone a long distance Lee was left behind and was shot. He collapsed but fired from the ground and seeing that he refused to surrender the police shot him eight times after which he threw away his weapon.

Guerilla Headquarters Established

Counter-drive Rumoured For August 13

Chinese language evening papers stated yesterday that three new headquarters had been established by commanders of Chinese regulars and guerillas operating along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway for the purpose of facilitating the direction of a forthcoming counter offensives against the Japanese on the eastern front.

The field headquarters of these commanders were stated to have been established in Nanking, Hangchow and Shanghai but their locations were not mentioned.

It was stated that during the past few days the situation on the eastern front had been very tense as Chinese regulars and guerillas have been preparing to launch the much publicized big counter offensive before or after the August 13th Incident which marked the beginning of the hostilities around Shanghai more than two years ago.

Turkish Friendship for All States Stressed

Government's Policy Approved; Assembly Adjourns

Ankara, July 9.

Turkey's adherence to the "peace front" did not modify in the least the peace principles of Turkey, who had decided to maintain normal relations with all States, including Germany and Italy, declared M. Sarajoglu, the Foreign Minister, in a statement in the Grand National Assembly today.

Speaking on the declarations made by Britain and Turkey and by France and Turkey, M. Sarajoglu said that unity of points of view and interests, created by political events, consolidated the ties between the three countries. He emphasized that Turkey's friendship with the Soviet had "preserved all its initial warmth."

The recent visit of M. Vladimir Potemkin, Deputy Soviet Foreign Commissar, had reinforced the bonds between Turkey and the Soviet. He added that the Balkan Entente would "continue to serve the cause of peace with the same strength as before."

Turkey had unlimited confidence in her heroic army, he concluded.

After unanimously approving of the policy of the Government, the Assembly adjourned till the autumn.—Reuter.

What Is Alka-Seltzer?
"A New Modern Way to Get Quick Relief from Headaches and Acid Indigestion"

Everyone should know precisely why Alka-Seltzer is better in its double acting relief for headaches, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, muscular aches, colds and other common ailments associated with an excess acid condition.

Alka-Seltzer is the new and revolutionary remedy that acts in two ways—quickly, efficiently, safely. Not a laxative, but a remedy based on a proved principle. Notice the important functions.

First—Alka-Seltzer relieves pain quickly through its analgesic agent (sodium acetyl salicylate). Second—Its alkalising agents help overcome the excess acid condition so frequently associated with these common ailments.

Because Alka-Seltzer gives them quicker relief millions use Alka-Seltzer daily. Few who once use Alka-Seltzer are willing to go to less effective and less pleasant medication. Get Alka-Seltzer today—keep it on hand always, at home and at work. Use Alka-Seltzer the next time you feel below par, have a headache, sour or acid stomach, colds and other everyday aches or pains. Alka-Seltzer will help to make you feel better, look better.

Shanghai Stocks

Yesterday's Business

After a small settlement the tone of the market improved in the afternoon, there being a small though good enquiry for most issues. Ewos were quiet but steady with a small turnover of 2,000 shares at 18.80. Telephones improved to $12 at which price 700 shares changed hands. Wheelocks were strong at 35 while Rubbers, after a dull period were noticeably stronger, Anglo-Javas being done at 18.30 and Tanah Merahs at 2.07½ ex dividend.

What United States Trade Needs

Mr. W. Winthrop Speaking At the Bond Club Makes A Plea for Economy

At a recent luncheon meeting of the Bond Club of New York, Mr. Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank of the City of New York, expressed the opinion that there was no immediate threat of war in Europe and told his listeners to cease worrying about events abroad and to concentrate on America's domestic problems, states the "Financial News."

We have in this country today, declared Mr. Aldrich, a radical conflict in the economic field between our foreign policies and our domestic policies.

Government's Conflicting Policies

On the one hand, we have the reciprocal tariff policy of our Government, which seeks to lower trade barriers and to increase the volume of imports, in order that we may increase the volume of our exports. On the other hand, we have a multitude of conflicting policies which have resulted in a variety of measures, the effect of which is to raise domestic prices, artificially to limit production, and, of necessity, to check exports.

On the one hand, we have a desire on the part of those who are responsible for fostering our foreign trade to co-operate in every way possible with our manufacturers and our exporters and importers, to increase this trade. On the other hand, we have an atmosphere toward domestic business and commerce which wavers between definite hostility and half-hearted appeasement.

This conflict of policy in some cases bears very hard upon certain manufacturers, because they are asked to make sacrifices in connection with their domestic markets, in order to foster our export trade at the very time when the domestic policies of their Government are making it difficult for them to earn profits in the domestic trade. One of the most vital needs of our country today is the co-ordination of its foreign and domestic policies with regard to industry, commerce and trade.

Problem of Idle Funds

A short time ago, the President of the United States addressed to the Temporary National Economic Committee an enquiry as to why there is such a large amount of idle money in this country at the present time, and as to why this money is not being used in capital expenditure and in the employment of labour. This problem is one with which the bankers of this country have been wrestling for the past four or five years.

Every effort has been made to increase commercial loans and to encourage capital investment. The obstacles which exist have been stated and restated time and time again. I will not attempt at this time to enter into a lengthy discussion, but will simply enumerate some of those which are generally recognized.

There are a number of taxes which definitely inhibit the use of funds in risk-taking activities, which are the kind of activities which create new enterprise and bring about expansion of employment most rapidly. For instance, there is the undistributed profits tax. I personally do not agree with President Roosevelt at the present time that this tax is comparatively unimportant, but I believe that Congress in any case is on its way to eliminate it.

The capital gains tax is a greater inhibition to the investment of capital than is the undistributed profits tax. When capital gains are taxed at income-tax rates, men with substantial supplies of capital will not dare take risks. If they are successful the Government makes most of the profit. If they are unsuccessful the Government makes up none of the losses, and they cannot even carry over the losses into another year. The modification of the capital gains tax early in 1938 has made some difference, but not nearly enough. The upper brackets of the surtax and income-tax field are obviously paralysing so far as risk-taking activities are concerned.

Budgetary Position

We all remember the long discussion about Government competition with the utilities. We all remember the effect of the continued shocks and uncertainties which have been the result of Government policy.

The whole budgetary position of the Government is a source of grave disquiet to men who would like to make long run plans. There is no more vital issue before the country than the assuring of the solvency of our national Government and the balancing of the Budget, which ought not to be on such a high level of expenditure that the taxes with which the Budget is balanced weigh too heavily on industrial activities."

Mr. Aldrich also pointed to the President's devaluation powers as a brake on long-term investment, and stressed the desirability of eliminating the reserve of $47,000,000,000 necessary under the Social Security Act.

Finally, he urged his listeners to do all in their power to help Congress to economize by refraining from asking for further expenditures of Federal funds in their localities.

French Industrialization

Marked Changes to Mining and Manufacturing Industries; State's Role in Economic Life

Of all the countries of continental Europe, France is probably the one where life in all its forms — political, social and economic—has least changed in the past twenty-five years. The ordeal of war, which brought about the disappearance of three great European monarchies, the complete disappearance of the old Russian society and financial upheavals in Germany and Italy, affected France relatively little as regards its fundamental structure, in spite of the terrible losses which it sustained in human life and in property of every kind, states the Paris correspondent of the "Financial News."

It would, however, be a mistake to believe, as its adversaries claim, that France is a static country, which is closed to progress and whose dominant ideal is still the unproductive "woollen stocking." All who have travelled through the devastated regions and in the French North African Empire, particularly Morocco, know how far this allegation is from the truth.

No Violent Change

On the whole, if the changes that have taken place during this period are examined, it will be noted that they do not constitute a violent rupture with the past; they merely represent an evolution in harmony with tendencies that had already begun to manifest themselves decades before the war and whose determining factor has been rapid technical progress.

The record of these changes is set forth in a remarkable study called "De la France d'avant-guerre à la France d'aujourd'hui," which is the collective work of several well-known French economists, including Professor Charles Rist, former Vice-Governor of the Bank of France, whose voice is specially heeded in this country. The study, which is supported by cogent statistical data, is composed of several articles giving a detailed analysis of evolution in all domains —agriculture, industry, commerce, finance, currency, budget, prices, wealth, national revenue, etc.

The work takes as its point of departure the year 1911, which is compared with 1936, though the investigations and statistics frequently go as far as 1937, and even 1938. It is an objective work, based simply upon facts and abstaining from any political polemics.

From the economic point of view, three conclusions particularly strike the attention: the desertion of the countryside, increased industrialization accompanied by a movement of concentration in industry and the increasing intervention of the State in economic life.

Flight From the Land

France, by degrees, has ceased to be a country with a predominantly rural population. Thus, out of 1,000 active persons, there were in 1906 420 agriculturists and in 1931 only 355. In other words, the total population working on the land shows a decrease of 1,316,207 persons during that period, that is to say, from 8,691,941 to 7,375,734. Cultivated land dropped from 36,728,615 hectares in 1911 to 33,796,007 hectares in 1936. During recent years this desertion of country districts has been continuing, especially under the influence of measures of the "Front Populaire" Governments, which, by instituting the 40-hour week on railways and in industry, attracted tens of thousands of agricultural workers into the towns. But definite figures are not yet available.

More Industrial Concerns

The industrial concentration is in turn illustrated by the fact that from 1906 to 1926—years when the census by profession was taken—the number of medium-sized concerns increased by 60 per cent., and that of large enterprises by 50 per cent. The number of establishments occupying one person dropped from 1,161,426 to 927,288.

Industrial concentration is also reflected in the steady increase of industrial agreements, which are not limited to national territory but often connect French industry with that of numerous other countries.

Sequels of the War

Industrialization is most marked in the mining and manufacturing domains, as well as the various other key industries, which have witnessed a substantial increase in their personnel. The factor which in particular exercised a stimulating effect, apart from the 1929 crisis, was the war, inasmuch as the invasion of the northern provinces led to a development of the metallurgical and other industries in the Central and South-eastern regions.

Further, the territorial modifications that followed the world conflict had a lasting repercussion on the French industrial structure, which assumed a more strongly marked exporting character than previously. Then, again, the reincorporation of Alsace-Lorraine enormously increased French metallurgical capacity, as well as that of the chemical industry, which benefited by the rich iron and potash mines.

Govt. Influence Everywhere

Greater than this change in the agricultural and industrial structure, is perhaps the evolution of the role of the Government. Whereas before the war the State's encroachment was limited to a certain degree of control —which was, however, liberal—Government intervention now makes itself felt in all domains. The very rudimentary pre-war social legislation has grown into a complete work, the individual contract and salary have been supplanted by the collective contract and salary; commodities, such as grain, wine and alcohol, are no longer subject to the free play of supply and demand, but are regulated in the matter of price and distribution by semi-Governmental offices.

In the petroleum and electric industries, the Government, holding an important interest in companies whose juridical form is private, exercises considerable influence. In commerce, it exercises a control over prices; by fiscal legislation it supports small merchants in their fight against department stores; it has practically nationalized the railways and is regulating competition between road and rail.

Organizing Credit Systems

In the banking domain, the Government intervenes by organizing credit systems for peasant farmers, for hotels and for maritime navigation. Further, the situation of the Treasury and the currency have compelled the State to play a role in the monetary domain which was unknown before the war, namely, that of a money creator by forcing the Bank of France to grant advances to it which are counterbalanced by an increased circulation of notes and deposits, or as regulator by creating an exchange equalization fund and a Rentes intervention fund.

Public Expenditure

Public expenses much inflated by reason of the pension and other burdens left by the war, the considerable increase in the number of Government employees and the requirements for national defence, are estimated for 1936 at 40 per cent. of natural revenue, compared with 15 per cent. in 1911. Since then, this proportion has been constantly increasing, and must at present be around 50 per cent.

National revenue, calculated on the basis of purchasing power, has been approximately maintained. It is estimated to have increased from 36,000,000,000f. in 1913 to 260,000,000,000f. in 1938, i.e., from 900f. to 6,200f. per head of the population. Taking as a basis 100-1913, the revenue per head in 1938 is thus 688f., while the retail price index is 647.

However, a "democratization" is noted, since the income from capital has decreased, while the income resulting from labour has increased. If holders of securities and real estate have suffered by reason of the post-war crises and currency devaluation, increased consumption shows a higher standard of living for the French worker.

Optimism for Future

Professor Rist has expressed frank optimism in his conclusions as to the present and future of the nation:—"Today, as yesterday," he says, "France essentially remains a country of nuances, of equilibrium, of reason. The Frenchman's individualism renders him particularly apt in producing a quality which enables him to keep an interesting clientèle, and markets, even in an era of mechanical technique and mass consumption. The thrift habit is so deeply rooted in him that he has been undaunted by disappointments. His psychological traits are guarantees of political stability. The mass of French opinion goes but rarely and temporarily to extremes. That is doubtless the reason why it has no taste for totalitarian regimes and remains strongly attached—in spite of their imperfections—to democratic and liberal political institutions."

Berlin Bourse Weekly Report

Berlin, July 9.

The bourse business on Saturday was characteristical for the general trend that had dominated the market throughout the week, the interest in tax certificates I slumping after June 30 after which date the chief motive for buying had disappeared.

On July 1, however, bond and mortgage holders received their quarterly interest payments for which sound long-term investments were sought. As the share prices had sunk heavily all through June while tax certificates I were being bought so eagerly and shares being often sacrificed to raise cash for such purchases, the general level of share prices at the beginning of July was very attractive to investors.

The heavy demand for shares this week sent the prices up again, thus bringing about a marked recovery. The "Frankfurter Zeitung" share index on July 7 stood at 127.49 and the bond index at 101.61, clearly confirming the upwards trend.

The money market became very liquid after the end of month settlement had passed, first class short term securities, notably sola bills, being in brisk demand. The liquidity of the market, however, caused the call money rates to decline, the closing rate yesterday being 2½ to 2¾.

Japanese Support Wang Ching-wei

New Kuomintang Will Meet Favour with Best People In China, Says Spokesman

Support of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, erstwhile member of the Chungking régime, by the Japanese authorities, was voiced at the press conference yesterday. Commenting on Mr. Wang's speech of Sunday night Lieut.-Col. Isuo Mabuchi declared that the Japanese military had given Mr. Wang their approval and pledged him their whole-hearted support in his present emergency.

Asked if Mr. Wang Ching-wei would supersede Mr. Wang Kehmin and others as the leading figure in the New Order in East Asia, Col. Mabuchi replied that it was too early for Mr. Wang to assume such a position. Up to now Mr. Wang had advocated national salvation through peace and had tried to get Gen. Chiang Kai-shek to change his views. He now finds that he is no longer in a position to co-operate with Chiang Gen. in securing national salvation and has assumed the sole leadership, which he had previously intended to share with Chiang. It is assumed that as developments take place Mr. Wang will emerge as a political figure.

Judging from Wang's ability and career, the spokesman continued, it is assumed that he will soon be able to rally round him the Chinese nation and his popularity will supersede that of any other régime in China. As you know, he said, the people of China are tired of war and hope for someone to lead them on the way to peace. Continuous warfare, as advocated by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, will drive the people to their own destruction.

The views of Mr. Wang Ching-wei will find a warm reception among the Chinese people and he has all the attributes to become the leading figure in the reconstruction of China. It is expected that people in China who mean something will rally round Mr. Wang, but the masses may be swayed by any force. So long as people of any value rally to him, the rest will be easy, the spokesman added.

Military Strength Deteriorating

As a member of the Kuomintang and a close associate of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, continued the spokesman, Mr. Wang was the logical successor to the leadership of the party but had this leadership taken away by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, who controlled by military force. This military strength was deteriorating rapidly and the day has come for the Chinese people to rally round the new leader.

In reply to a query as to what plans were outlined for Mr. Wang, the spokesman replied that he had no information as to what they exactly were. Another correspondent asked if the leading Chinese who were to flock to Mr. Wang were living in the occupied areas. To this the spokesman replied that some were in occupied areas but that the majority of them were in Shanghai and Hongkong and it was expected that when the time came those in the Chungking régime who were sympathetic would come to him one after the other. The Kuomintang in Chungking is now controlled by the power of life and death by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek; the Kuomintang in Chungking was no longer the real Kuomintang as laid down by Dr. Sun and Mr. Wang feels that he has been expelled from an organization that has no meaning.

Kuomintang Under Duress

A correspondent then asked if the members of the Kuomintang were being held under duress to which the spokesman replied that Chiang Kai-shek had forbidden public and military officials from returning to their own homes for fear these officials would take that opportunity to flee from Chungking. I was pointed out to the spokesman that former friends and even relatives of Mr. Wang in Shanghai had not resumed connections with him.

To this the spokesman replied that in Shanghai, where Gen. Chiang can by brutal force take action against anyone running counter to his causes it is imagined that people will disclaim other relationships. It was then asked if Mr. Wang was delegated to throw off the "tyranny" of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek. In answer the spokesman said that he had not been taken into confidence regarding future plans.

The question of two Kuomintangs, each striving to outdo the other, was then put to the spokesman and he replied that the original Kuomintang as laid down by Dr. Sun was based on broad and idealistic principles. Since the party was taken over by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek these principles had been twisted into something that the founder had never envisaged. It is the aim of Mr. Wang to revive the principles of Dr. Sun and lead the party into those channels. A temporary conflict between the Kuomintangs is expected but eventually Mr. Wang will emerge triumphant, said the spokesman.

Asked what the attitude of the new Kuomintang would be towards Communism, the spokesman answered that the eradication of Communism was necessary for the salvation of China.

Police in Britain May Be Reinforced

Plans Studied for Crushing Irish Terrorists

London, July 10.

The British Government consulted Scotland Yard today regarding proposed action by the House of Commons to increase Britain's police powers to combat increasing terrorism directed by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The proposed bill would grant the police wider prerogatives in search and seizure which would enable the police to obtain important evidence and hold a large number of arrested suspects.—United Press.

Dominican Envoy in Spain Searched

Washington, July 9.

The Dominican Government would shortly address a vigorous protest to the Spanish Government over the case in which its Minister to Spain, Senor Rafael Tolentino, was arrested and searched by the police both in Madrid and Barcelona, the Dominican Legation here announced today. The incidents occurred before Senor Tolentino's departure for Mexico, where he is to take up a new post. —Havas.

Paris Bourse

Paris, July 9.

As the international situation eased slightly, the Bourse became correspondingly firmer during the last week and, technically, the state of affairs on the market was remarkably balanced.

It was confirmed that the heaviness prevalent on the Bourse the week before had been due to the tension arising out of the Danzig crisis.

Since Tuesday of last week, an upward trend was noticeable. On Thursday and Friday, transactions were made in a calm atmosphere and the Bourse closed without further change.—Havas.

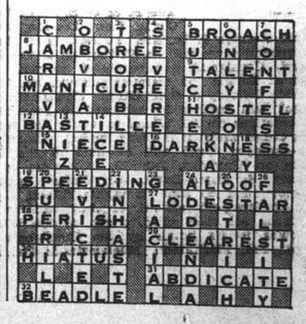
SOLUTION OF LONDON CROSS WORD No. 1859



FROM DAY TO DAY

Miss M. Barrie sailed in the ss. Empress of Japan for a visit to Canada.

Mrs. W. S. Parsons left yesterday in the ss. Empress of Japan for a short holiday in America.

A branch office of the Three Principles' Youth Corps is now being organized in Hsining, capital of Tsinghai, under the supervision of Mr. Ma Pu-fang, says a Chinese report to the "Shun Pao."

Running between Campbeltown and Glasgow yesterday, the steamer Dalriada passed through a shoal of basking sharks and killed four of them in the Firth of Clyde. A passenger described the shoal as a "veritable lane of monsters."

Sir Victor Sassoon sailed yesterday in the ss. Empress of Japan for Honolulu and it is his intention to fly from there to San Francisco to view the Golden Gate Exposition. After spending some time viewing the exposition and motoring trips in California he will return by air to Honolulu and will then connect with a steamer for Shanghai.

Mr. W. K. C. Guthrie, M.A., of Peterhouse has been elected by 67 votes to 63 to follow in succession to Dr. T. R. Glover at the end of the academic year, as Public Orator. Mr. Glover has held the office of Public Orator for nineteen years, and once fined the present King 6s. 8d. for smoking in a cap and gown while an undergraduate at Cambridge.

Twelve year old Freedie Brown, three foot high son of a Doncaster railway-man is to conduct during Mr. Herman Darewski's summer visit to the Spa Royal Hall, Bridlington. Each of the 20 players in Darewski's band can do at least two things, the guitarist dances, the drummer is a comedian, and the saxophonist also plays the flute, clarinet and the oboe.

Lord Dawson of Penn, the King's physician, speaking at Welwyn Garden City, Herts, recently, attacked what he termed "single-child sterility" which he thought was almost as bad as the childless couple. He suggested that the State should assist parents of limited means to have three or four children which he thought each family should have, in the interests of racial survival and strength.

In connection with memorial services held for the Chinese war dead on the second anniversary of the "Lukaochiao Incident," the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on Sunday received telegraphic dispatches from overseas Chinese groups in the Netherlands East Indies, Belgium, London and Berlin, reaffirming their support to General Chiang Kai-shek, says a Chungking Chinese report to the "Sin Wan Pao."

In observance of the 13th anniversary of the Nationalist Northern Punitive Expedition, a very impressive memorial service was performed at the auditorium of the Chinese National Government in Chungking on Sunday morning says a Chungking Chinese message to the "Shun Pao." Over 400 high Chinese Government officials attended the service, which was presided over by General Chiang Kai-shek, General Executive of the Kuomintang.

The health report of the French Municipality for the week ending July 8, shows that the total number of deaths from all causes amongst the foreign and Chinese population in the Concession were—Foreigners 6 and Chinese 255. Deaths from notifiable diseases were—Foreigners, tuberculosis 1, and Chinese, typhoid fever 22; tuberculosis 12; beri-beri 8; celebrospinal meningitis 4; dysentery 2 and encephalitis, recurring fever, measles, pneumonia, septiceamia 1 each.

A wire paying a warm tribute to China's national resistance and expressing the firm belief that China's ultimate national independence and the fruits of her economic reconstruction would conduce to the promotion of freedom among the Democratic countries and peoples, was received yesterday by General Chiang Kai-shek from Col. H. L. Stimson, former Secretary of State of the United States Government, says a Chungking Chinese message to the "Sin Wan Pao"

Guard Saves Train In Pomerania

Minor Incidents at Danzig; Poles Note Troop Reinforcement

Danzig, July 9.

It was revealed here today that a German was shot dead while attempting to escape from a Polish police officer who was arresting him at Strograud, on the Polish side of the frontier. The officer was arrested.

It was also revealed that an attempt was made to wreck the Koenigsberg-Berlin express on a lonely stretch of track outside Tcheff. Boulders were placed on the permanent way and only a quick-witted guard saved the train. The Poles describe the attempt as German provocation, while the Germans declare it as another outrage against Germany.

Herr Albert Forster, who addressed a huge crowd here today, made the first public reference to the Free Corps when he said: "Danzig is strong. Danzig men know how to use rifles and are ready, when called, to do so."

Less Urgency in Nazi Attitude

Cries of "Poles must vanquish Danzig" were raised by the large crowd. Herr Forster's sarcastic reference to "the good neighbour" Poland drew derisive laughter and jeers. Herr Forster declared that the will of the people of Danzig to return to the Reich was stronger than ever. He referred to the Polish Corridor as a victim of the "Versailles fraud," amid loud jeers from the crowd, and concluded with the assurance that Danzig would return to the Reich "some day."

His address, however, left the impression that it was much less an urgent matter than a fortnight ago.

A slight incident occurred when Reuters correspondent was taking notes of the address. A Storm Trooper approached and questioned him. When told that the Correspondent represented the English press, the Storm Trooper retorted: "English press! A lying press! Tell the truth this time. None of your hate stuff."—Reuter.

German Reinforcements

Warsaw, July 9.

German troop reinforcements have arrived at the former Czech-Polish frontier, according to reports from Teschen, which state that barbed wire entanglements 20 to 40 yards deep are being erected 200 yards from the frontier.

The Polish press today reports two incidents from Danzig.

A Polish railwayman is alleged to have been attacked and beaten by four uniformed Nazis near Schoenwarling. The man is said to have been rescued by a fellow railwayman.

The second incident reported is that the Gestapo have arrested and sent to a German concentration camp twelve workmen from the Schichau Wharf. where arms were landed recently.—Reuter.

Quiet Sunday in Reich

Berlin, July 9.

Germany today had its first quiet Sunday for a long time. Apart from a few sarcastic remarks concerning Mr. Neville Chamberlain's speech in Birmingham, even the newspapers indulged in a truce.—Reuter.

German Killed in Air Display in Brussels

Brussels, July 9.

A German, Captain Wille, crashed and was fatally injured today in a flying display before 100,000 spectators, including King Leopold. Nine German planes were engaged in aerobatics. Captain Wille took a Buecker Jungmeister machine into a roll, and without warning, it dived to the ground and was badly damaged. Britain, represented by nine Wellington bombers and one Hurricance plane, gave a display of formation flying. Several other countries also participated.—Reuter.

Yankee Clipper Carries 22 Passengers

First Regular Trip Across North Atlantic Made

London, July 9.

In a total time of 27 hours 30 minutes, the Yankee Clipper today completed its first regular passenger flight across the North Atlantic, by the Northern route through Newfoundland, landing here with 22 paying passengers aboard.

Drama attended this flight of the giant Pan-American Airways craft for it was not only a regular trip, but a race against time and death.

At the last minute, Guido Coen, New York lawyer, booked passage for Southampton to be able to rush to Italy, where his son is on his deathbed after suffering six years from infantile paralysis.

Actual flying time for the trip from Port Washington was only 19 hours 34 minutes.—Havas.

Polish Economic Mission Chief in London

London, July 10.

Colonel Adam Koc, director of the Bank of Poland, and head of the Polish economic mission to Great Britain, returned here by air today from Warsaw. Negotiations will be resumed today in connection with the British loan of £5,000,000, when final details will be discussed.—Havas.

FOOD PROBLEM WITH GASTRITIS

For years, doctors wanted to find a food that would not irritate the inflamed stomach walls of patients suffering from gastritis and that at the same time would rebuild the patient's strength. In severe cases of gastritis solid foods are out of the question, even liquid foods are often vomited. Yet the patient needs quick new strength to rebuild his exhausted body. In Horlicks, doctors and nurses have found an ideal food.

Where other foods are rejected, Horlicks is retained by the patient. And almost at once strength starts to come back with the result that convalescence is shortened too. Get Horlicks to-day from your store. It is delicious to taste.

Government Stops Foreign Exchange

Customs Said at Fault As Government Orders Not Obeyed Here

Chinese reports state that information emanating from banking circles indicates that it is now impossible for merchants in Shanghai to obtain foreign exchange allotments from Chungking as the Shanghai Customs has failed to carry out the recent order issued by Chungking forbidding the importation of unnecessary foreign goods. It is also said that the Customs has also failed to carry out the order strictly in regard to exporting goods from Shanghai. The situation indicates that Shanghai is considered as lost territory.

Questioned as to the outcome of the possible refusal on the part of the Chinese Government to grant foreign exchange allotments to Shanghai merchants, informed Chinese quarters told the "North-China Daily News" that the Chinese reports published by one news agency and several evening papers did not indicate that there had been an official order to that effect. Such an order might likely be issued but Shanghai merchants might still obtain foreign exchange from the unofficial or the "black" foreign exchange market here controlled by foreign banks, it was stated. Quotations are higher in the "black" market, however.

It will be recalled that Chungking has recently taken steps to prevent people here from buying more foreign exchange than necessary.

Another recent order stopped the Central Bank of China to receive foreign exchange allotment applications the duty having been shifted to a special committee in Chungking. The committee, after considering the applications will in turn order either the Bank of Communications or the Bank of China to grant allotments. At present, the latter two banks have not yet received orders to that effect but the Central Bank of China is reported to have definitely stopped receiving allotment applications.

Chungking Evacuation Proceeding

Safety Measures Being Rapidly Carried Out

Chungking, July 10.

The evacuation of the inhabitants of Chungking is proceeding and only some 200,000 persons, whose presence in Chungking is believed essential, are being allowed to remain in the city. The evacuation of 500,000 people is one problem, but the housing of them is still another.

At the same time, preparations for the safety of the people remaining in the city are being carried out. Hundreds of workmen are working night and day, blasting rocks and digging tunnels into surrounding hills to serve as shelters during air-raids.

Guarding against a possibility of an interruption of the power supply owing to Japanese bombings which might put the alarm sirens out of order, huge temple bells are being placed at principal street corners to replace the sirens if necessary.—Reuter.

Mr. Stimson's Message To Generalissimo

Chungking, July 10.

Col. Henry L. Stimson, former United States Secretary of State and now chairman of the American Committee for Non-Participation in Japanese Aggression, praised the courage of Chinese people in a message sent today to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

"Your undaunted courage and that of your people are an inspiration to the world," he said.

"We are confident that freedom, reconstruction and equality among the great peace loving nations will ultimately follow your heroic struggle."

Meanwhile, the Canadian League of Peace and Democracy also sent Gen. Chiang a message congratulating China on her resistance against Japan, "On the second anniversary of your heroic struggle for freedom we send our warmest greetings of solidarity and pledge our continued support until the final victory, the message said.

"Long live the Chinese Republic."—United Press.

German Troops in Shanghai?

It was reported in Shanghai yesterday that a number of German soldiers, dressed in the uniform of the Japanese Naval Landing Party, were seen marching recently on North Szechuen Road and that several had been seen outside the Landing Party Headquarters. No confirmation of this report could be obtained, however. Other reports had it that they were veterans of the Spanish war and had arrived in a Japanese freighter.

Tientsin Talks Agenda Not Yet Settled

pro-Chiang Kai-shek policy, and not to seek a local settlement, according to the Japanese press.—Domei.

Further Delays Possible

Tokyo, July 10.

The forthcoming Anglo-Japanese conversations in Tokyo on the Tientsin question are likely to be delayed until next week. The discussions in official Japanese circles on preparations for the conference may take some time, said the spokesman of the Foreign Office at his press conference this morning. He was therefore not sure, he added, whether the conference would begin this week.

A discussion, he said, took place yesterday between officials of the Foreign Office, the army and Japanese representatives from Tientsin, but it was of an informal nature, and no definite conclusions were reached. An official discussion, the spokesman said, would take place this afternoon.

The spokesman was asked whether any reply had been forthcoming in connection with the two protests made by the British Ambassador, Sir Robert Craigie, against the fatal bayonetting of Mr. R. M. Tinkler by Japanese bluejackekts at Pootung on June 6.

He understood, the spokesman replied, that the matter was being cleared up at Shanghai. Up to the present, Reuter understands, no reply has been sent to the British Ambassador by the Foreign Office.

Army's Eight Points

Japanese newspapers today, seemingly inspired, continue to play up Japan's "fundmental determination" to demand Britain's abandonment of her "General Chiang Kai-shek assisting policy," and maintain strict neutrality in the forthcoming conversations regarding Tientsin.

In this connection, the "Miyako Shimbun" understands that the Foreign Office has decided to accept the basic principles laid down by the army. The basic principles of the army are understood to be:

1. To demand a change in Britain's policies governing various political and economic spheres.
2. To demand Britain's recognition of the new political situation in East Asia.
3. The wholesale transfer of anti-Japanese terrorist and communist elements within the British Concession in Tientsin.
4. Acceptance of the co-operation of the Japanese police and Japanese gendarmes for the maintenance of peace and order.
5. Prohibition of the circulation of Chinese legal tender in the British Concession.
6. The transfer of the $50,000,000 worth of silver in the Concession belonging to Chinese banks.
7. The right to examine Chinese banks and exchange brokers.
8. Prohibition and suppression of anti-Japanese propaganda.—Reuter.

Foreigners Made Scapegoat

London, July 10.

In an editorial today on the forthcoming Anglo-Japanese negotiations in Tokyo, "The Times" reaffirms that only local questions connected with Tientsin can properly be made the subject of discussion.

Any attempts to raise wider issues, like general principles applying to foreign settlements and concessions in Chinese ports, would affect other Powers as well as Great Britain.

After enumerating evidences of Japan's "non-success after two years of war," "The Times" says it is still uncertain whether the Japanese people have yet grasped the implications of the resolution of their opponents.

To soldiers whose miscalculations have been so costly, the journal goes on, the foreigner is the obvious scapegoat, yet the real cause for the prolongation of the war can only be ascribed to the psychological errors of the Japanese General Staff, who seem to be welding the Chinese into a nation, as Napoleon, his armies and puppet governments united a hitherto divided and apathetic Germany in a national resolve to throw off foreign domination.—Reuter.

Conference Failure Predicted

Dr. Wang Chung-hui of Firm Opinion

Dr. Wang Chun-hui, Foreign Minister, today without any hesitation predicted the failure of the Anglo-Japanese negotiations at Tokyo on the Tientsin issue. He said that the negotiations would collapse because the two viewpoints "are too far apart."

Great Britain wants to make the Tientsin situation a local issue, while Japan wants to settle greater problems such as the "silver stored in Tientsin, Chinese currency and the new order in East Asia," the Foreign Minister said.

These issues involve other nations as the silver belongs to China and the other Powers interested in the currency and the status of China in the Far East, he declared.

"Britain cannot settle these questions unilaterally," he said, pointing out that the biggest handicap confronting the negotiations was the fact that Japanese militarists would control the Japanese viewpoint.

Discussing Japanese policy in the event the negotiations break down, he said that although Japan had threatened to occupy British concessions in China by force, he could not believe that Japan would make such a move because "that would carry their policy too far."

Great Britain, he said, will probably refuse to discuss other matters which the Japanese desire because "Britain has no right and refuses to negotiate on matters in which other nations are concerned."

The only logical conclusion is that the conference will fail, he said. It is obvious that if Great Britain gives in to the Japanese, the other third Powers will suffer as the Japanese policy is to apply "pressure on one power at a time and others will be next."

Referring to the new American neutrality bill, the Chinese Foreign Minister believed that there would be a long debate in the Senate and said that it would handicap the Administration in playing its part in world affairs.

The provisions for only short term credits of 90 days would hurt China while the embargo on arms and ammunition would hurt Great Britain and France in the event of war in Europe, he said.—United Press.

Japanese Military To Try Col. Spear

Special Court Accepts Case; British Embassy Not Officially Informed

Peiping, July 10.

Lieut.-Col. C. R. Spear, British Military Attaché to China, who was arrested by Japanese military authorities at Kalgan on May 26, will be tried by a special Japanese military court, a Japanese army spokesman said today. The special court accepted the "Spear case" on July 5, he said.

The British Embassy said that it had not yet been officially notified of the Japanese intention to try the British officer. If Col. Spear is tried by the Japanese it would be the first time in hostory that a foreign military attaché would appear before a Japanese military court.

Questioned regarding the legality of such a trial, Japanese spokesman warned that it would be "better to leave the question of extrality untouched and await the outcome" of the trial.

The court, which was formed at the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, consists of legal experts who are not regular military men. They are, however, attached to the army. United Press.

Canton Area Scene Of Fighting

Severe Skirmishing on River Channels

Canton, July 10.

Severe skirmishing took place last night on river channels leading towards Shekki, according to Chinese reports. Chinese troops, they add, machinegunned advancing Japanese boats, which eventually retired at dawn today.

Japanese planes are reported to have been very active yesterday over the scene of the later fighting.—Reuter.

Engagements in Shansi

Chungking, July 10.

Fighting is continuing in many parts of Shansi, according to a Chinese dispatch.

Engagements are reported to be in progress in South Shansi, south-east of the Tungpu Railway, where the Japanese are said to be striking to the south-east from Yichen, Chianhsien and Anyi.

Fighting is also taking place further to the north, in the vicinity of Sinyuan, east of the Tungpu Railway town of Chaochen.

It is reported that a Japanese detachment, which pushed southward from Chanhsincheng, has occupied Sinhsien, while another Japanese force is advancing to the north-east from Antseh in an attempt to encircle Sinyuan.—Reuter.

Mexico Will Compensate Oil Interests

Gen. Cardenas Welcomes Foreign Investments

Mexico City, July 10.

Mexico intends to pay foreigners for their expropriated properties within ten years, declared the President, General Lazaro Cardenas, today.

Twenty per cent. of the funds from the sales and exports of petroleum, he said, had been placed in a reserve account for this purpose. The President said Mexico would welcome new foreign investments, but he emphasized that these must comply with Mexican law.—Reuter.

Chungking Residential District Planned

Chungking, July 10.

A loan of $10,000,000 for the construction of residential districts in the suburbs of Chungking is being granted by the four government banks, the Central Bank, the Bank of China, the Bank of Communications and the Farmers Bank.

Twelve localities have been selected for this purpose, and the work of construction will be started on three of them immediately.

The municipal authorities are drafting plans to control foodstuffs and other daily necessities in the near future.—Reuter.

Twenty Burnt Alive In Motor Bus

Marseilles, July 10.

A motorbus on regular service between Marseilles, Aix-on-Provence and Roquevaire, burst into flames this morning in front of the gendarmerie barracks at Roquevaire. Some twenty occupants of the motor-bus were burnt alive but no details are yet known.—Trans-Ocean

Yesterday's Casualties

A Chinese, victim of a mysterious shooting was taken from No. 11 Pontoon, Hankow Road Bund, to the refugee hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head, at 3.27 yesterday afternoon. He was picked up by the Fire Brigade ambulance and was found to have a fractured skull.

Three Chinese men were severely injured when a hand grenade exploded at the corner of Penang and Kiaochow Roads about 9.30 last night. They were taken to the Labour hospital on Ferry Road. It is thought that one of the men found the bomb lying in the street and picked it up to examine it.

American Trade With Tientsin Declines

Tientsin, July 10.

A marked decline in American imports from Tientsin was disclosed when statistics compiled by the United States Consulate General here were made public today. Total exports from Tientsin to the United States, Hawaii and the Philippines during June amounted to U.S.$79,119 compared with U.S.$865,666 for the month of May.

A further decline this month was anticipated by local American businessmen. They cited the blockade of the British and French Concessions and the new exchange control due to take effect on July 17 as the chief causes.—United Press.

Dr. Havelock Ellis Dies at 80 Years

other volumes of "Studies in the Psychology of Sex." These rank among his greatest books. Others are "Man and Woman" a study of secondary sex characteristics, "A Study of British Genius," "The Criminal" and "The Dance of Life."

In "A study of British Genius" Dr. Ellis concluded that the upper and middle classes produce the most geniuses usually from small towns rather than cities, from large families rather than small ones. Geniuses, he determined, were precocious, feeble in health in early life but fairly long lived, usually married late in life and had few or no children.

Unusual Marital Life

Dr. Ellis was married in 1891 to Edith M. O. Lees, a leading feminist, author and playwright. They had an unusual marital relationship maintaining separate establishments and "visiting" each other. Mrs. Ellis contended this system had kept their love young and eager over more than a generation. She died in 1916 from a cold contracted while watching a Zeppelin raid.

Dr. Ellis inspired his admirers with unusual enthusiasm. H. L. Mencken called him "the most civilized living Englishman." Another writer termed him one of the most unusual men of modern times and to a third he was "the philosopher of love." In appearance he was impressive, his lean, long intellectual face, framed in an imposing white beard.

The older he became, the younger and more vigorous did he seem. An interviewer, when Dr. Ellis was 53, remarked that he appeared more than his age. But in 1934 few would believe that he was a man of 75. This excess over the biblical three score and ten was at one time a source of embarrassment to Dr. Ellis according to Dr. Houston Peterson, one of his biographers. The psychologist, Dr. Peterson wrote, had never considered that he would live beyond 50 but as the years rolled by he became reconciled to longevity.—United Press.

German Press Views Not Fit for Rumania

Reprints on Support for Bulgaria Bring Protest

Bucharest, July 10.

The reproduction by the Rumanian press of comments which appeared in German papers on the occasion of the recent visit to Berlin of the Bulgarian Premier, M. George Kiosseivanoff, was the cause of a demarche made to the Foreign Ministry today by the German Minister to Rumania, Dr. Wilhelm Fabricius.

The Minister regretted that the German newspaper articles were brought to the knowledge of the Rumanian public. The Rumanian papers had stressed the encouragement given again by the Reich to Bulgaria's revisionist claims.—Havas.

Abolition of "Security Wage" Sought

Washington, July 10.

New Deal Congressmen are launching a vigorous fight here today to secure Congressional abolition of the Works Progress Administration security wage which has resulted in a strike by more than 150,000 W.P.A. relief workers in all parts of the nation.

Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labour, convoked a meeting of all A.F.L. union presidents here on Wednesday to consider the question and the Congress of Industrial Organizations already has demanded abolition of the security wage.

A meeting of W.P.A. state supervisors has been convoked in Chicago Wednesday to discuss the same problem.—United Press.
